Dawson, 1998-04-01 Historian Michael Dawson digs deep into the written and pictorial record to reveal how the RCMP since its inception has constructed and zealously guarded its public image Drawing on previously untapped sources Dawson documents how consultants and entrepreneurs deliberately transformed and modernized the traditional symbolism of the Mountie His trenchant analysis extends to the ironies of the recent licensing of the hallowed Mountie image to the ultimate dream merchants Disney Susannah of the Mounties , 2006 The Little Girl Who Fought the Great Depression John F. Kasson, 2014-04-14 Discusses the optimism and good cheer that surrounded the young Depression era box office star whose singing acting and charming smile helped revive the American spirit during the 1930s and for many decades after

The Collaboration Ben Urwand, 2013-09-10 To continue doing business in Germany Hollywood studios agreed not to make films attacking Nazis or condemning persecution of Jews Ben Urwand reveals this collaboration and the cast of characters it drew in ranging from Goebbels to Louis B Mayer At the center was Hitler himself obsessed with movies and their power to shape public opinion Four to Fourteen Kathleen M. Lines, 2015-04-09 First published in 1956 this book contains a list of children's books suitable for children from infancy until the early teens Native Americans in the Movies Michael Hilger, 2015-10-16 Since the early days of the silent era Native Americans have been captured on film often in unflattering ways Over the decades some filmmakers have tried to portray the Native American on screen with more balanced interpretations to varying degrees of success More recent films such as The New World Flags of Our Fathers and Frozen River have offered depictions of both historical and contemporary Native Americans providing viewers with a range of representations In Native Americans in the Movies Portrayals from Silent Films to the Present Michael Hilger surveys more than a century of cinema Drawing upon his previous work From Savage to Nobleman Hilger presents a thorough revision of the earlier volume The introductory material has not only been revised with updated information and examples but also adds discussions of representative films produced since the mid 1990s Now organized alphabetically the entries on individual films cover all relevant works made over the past century and each entry contains much more information than those in the earlier book. Details include film summary, nation represented, image portrayal, production details, DVD availability. Many of the entries also contain comments from film critics to indicate how the movies were regarded at the time of their theatrical release. Supplemented by appendixes of image portrayals, representations of nations, and a list of made-for-television movies, this volume offers readers a comprehensive and up-to-date overview of hundreds of films in which Native American characters have appeared on the big screen. As such, Native Americans in the Movies will appeal not only to scholars of media, ethnic studies, and history but also to anyone interested in the portrayal of Native Americans in cinema.

The Road to Oz Jay Scarfone, William Stillman, 2018-10. A complete retelling of how The Wizard of Oz was influenced and created and attained its iconic status. The new Jay Scarfone and William Stillman volume will reflect recent research and much more through newly discovered period interviews, media resources of the era, transcriptions, and unique contemporary interviews with those who were there. Additionally, never before published imagery accompanies the text, which may be presented as inserts or interspersed throughout. In its truth and candor, this new historical contribution will need to be unofficial and unauthorized. The Road to Oz is ideal to tie in with the 2018-19 80th anniversary of the 1939 movie.

A Woman's View Jeanine Basinger, 2013-09-04. Now Voyager. Stella Dallas. Leaver Her to Heaven. Imitation of Life. Mildred Pierce. Gilda. These are only a few of the hundreds of women's films that poured out of Hollywood during the thirties, forties, and fifties. The films were widely disparate in subject, sentiment, and technique; they nonetheless shared one dual purpose: to provide the audience of women primarily with temporary liberation into a screen dream of romance, sexuality, luxury, suffering, or even wickedness, and then send it home reminded, reassured, and resigned to the fact that no matter what else she might do, a woman's most important job was to be a woman. Now, with boundless knowledge and infectious enthusiasm, Jeanine Basinger illuminates the various surprising and subversive ways in which women's films delivered their message. Basinger examines dozens of films exploring the seemingly intractable contradictions at the convoluted heart of the woman's genre: among them, the dilemma of the strong and glamorous woman who cedes her power when she feels it threatening her personal happiness; and the self-abnegating woman whose selflessness is not always as noble as it appears. Basinger looks at the stars who played these women and helps us understand the qualities the right off-screen personae, the right on-screen attitudes, the right faces that made them personify the woman's film and equipped them to make believable drama or comedy out of the crackpot plots, the conflicting ideas, and the exaggerations of real behavior that characterize these movies. In each of the films, the author discusses whether melodrama, screwball comedy, musical, film noir, western, or biopic, a woman occupies the center of her particular universe. Her story, in its endless variations of rags to riches, boy meets girl, battle of the sexes, mother love, doomed romance, inevitably sends a highly potent mixed message: Yes, you women belong in your proper place, that is, content with the Big Three of the woman's film world: men, marriage, and motherhood. But meanwhile, and paradoxically, see what fun, glamour, and power you can enjoy along the way A Woman's View deepens our understanding of the times and circumstances and attitudes out of which these movies were created
