Swallowing A Fishbone Feminist Theologians Deba:

Swallowing a Fishbone? Margaret Daphne Hampson, 1996 Six British theologians who count themselves feminist engage in debate over the compatibility of feminism and Christianity They range over questions of theology ethics feminist praxis and spirituality drawing on diverse fields as feminist liberation theology patristic Christology narrative theology and post Christian thought

Deadly Innocence Angela West, 1995 By discarding huge areas of Christian theology as male creations feminists have silenced aspects of the tradition that might actually help us in the quest for innocence for example the acknowledgement of our own capacity for sin and the recognition that women too have had their part in the history of violence

Fragments for Fractured Times Nicola Slee, 2020-09-30 Nicola Slee one of the world's leading feminist practical theologians brings together 15 years of papers articles talks and sermons many of them previously unpublished Drawing on a wide and diverse range of her writing Slee demonstrates the richness and variety of feminist practical theological writing

After Christianity Daphne Hampson, 2002 Describes a systematic theology for our times directed towards those many people who feel compelled to discard the Christian story but who would nonetheless be spiritual persons This reissue features a new introduction in which the author responds to a number of her critics

From Feminist Theology to Indecent Theology, 2008

What Will Happen to God? William Oddie, 1988

Feminist Theology Ann Loades, 2001-06-08 Some feminist women search for the roots of feminism in the recent past others write the past off Too many assume that religious traditions have nothing to offer feminism so even when religious belief has been central to the inspiration of some of the most powerful campaigners for the value and worth of women the significance of that belief has been ignored Mary Wollstonecraft argued for the rights of women Josephine Butler fought against the devaluation of women expressed in the Contagious Diseases Acts Dorothy L Sayers had a powerful sense of the way women and men grace one another's lives in their work They all drew on the Christian tradition of their own times but this has rarely been given weight These women have not been considered together nor as theologians as here in Ann Loades's new book In their life time each of them opened up some painful issues abortion and its significance in our shared social lives forms of coercion especially the sexual abuse of children and the importance of women's work Their courage and generosity offer salutary challenges to our own times Feminist Theology will be of interest to all those concerned with contemporary theological questions as well as to students of feminism and the analysis of gender in sociology politics and the humanities

Hope Abundant Pui-lan Kwok, 2010 A new generation of feminist theologians from Africa Asia Oceania and Latin America is responding to their changing world with critical theological insights and social analyses This new reader including indigenous voices comprises eighteen reflections by women theologians who face daily poverty violence civil strife war and cultural alienation yet who find abundant hope through their faith Kwok Pui-lan from Hong Kong is the William F Cole Professor of Christian Theology and Spirituality at the Episcopal Divinity School in Cambridge She has published extensively on Asian feminist theology biblical interpretation and postcolonial theology Writing in both Chinese and English she is the author of Discovering the Bible in the Non Biblical World Orbis and the editor of Women and Christianity a four volume reference work Routledge A groundbreaking and rich anthology This book is an excellent introduction of these variegated voices from around the world I highly recommend it in the hope that it will become a must read in many theology and women s studies courses Elisabeth Schnssler Fiorenza A comprehensive and lucid analysis of the exciting and contentious theological development of Third World women has all the ingredients for becoming an instant classic R S Sugirtharajah Hope Abundant is a worthy successor to With Passion and Compassion Third World Women Doing Theology It charts ably how Third World feminist and indigenous women s theology has developed over the last two decades demonstrating its breadth in pointing to emerging themes and its depth in critical analysis This book is a go to resource Robert Schreiter Provides a much needed volume of essays written by global women influenced by feminist post colonial and indigenous theological perspectives What they write about scripture Christology and the body sexuality and spirituality is must reading for all in theological studies Linda E Thomas
