Systematic Subjective Colour Selection:

Systematic/Subjective Colour Selection Andrew Bellamy, 2005-05 This title aims to increase awareness of the importance of colour as a powerful design tool in print. Used properly, colour selections and combinations can be employed to create numerous visual effects to add entire new dimensions to a designer's work. In order to use this tool effectively, colour itself, its selection and organisation must be understood. This book, with its inspiring content, stimulating design and approachable format, provides the reader with everything he or she needs to know. Computer technology has revolutionised the work of graphic designers and Systematic Subjective Colour Selection specifically addresses them. It covers the fundamentals of colour, its choice and interrelationships, the differences between the colour we see in print and on our screens and how to mix colour in contemporary vector-based computer programs. This guide will give designers of all nationalities a comprehensive understanding of how to choose effective colour schemes for the eye, not the individual. This book is innovatively bound to encompass two in one, complete with a detachable colour wheel for the reader to use when choosing future designs.

COLOR COMPOSITION Andrew Bellamy, 2004-11      Systematic Research and Analysis of the Tooth Colour André Hoffmann, 2005-10-31 André Hoffmann, innovator, researcher and developer, pioneer in the field of optical technologies, photonics, systematically researched the tooth colour and its origin with highest precision. See publication in 2000. This book shows an excerpt of this systematic original research at human teeth and dental shade guides with high precision measuring systems and high precision positioning system in vitro. Due to his basic scientific research, he was able to quantify and isolate manifold factors influencing the colour of teeth. These include, for example, the light or measuring light and the type of light illuminant and illumination and colour temperature, the optical beam path of the light or the measuring geometry, the observation angle, the size of the measuring surface and measuring opening, the gloss, the liquid content, with scientific evidence of the relationship between liquid content and tooth colour, effect of drying, moisture and rehydration, the correlation between the liquid content and the gloss effect, the subjectivity of visual subjective shade matching, crown curvature, type of system, spectrophotometer, tristimulus colorimeter, measuring mode, contact or non contact system, object relation, positioning, repeatability or reproducibility, lens shift, displacement between sample and measuring surface and further intra and interindividual factors. In addition, subjective visual determinations and objectified measurements were examined in subjective/objective comparisons using colour coordinates, comparisons. All these influencing factors are investigated on moist, drying, drier, various specific dehydration and rehydration states and dry teeth based on the brightness L, on colour measurement values such as a, b, CIELAB, C, h, CIELCH, E, on the metamerism index, on spectral values and curves, tabs of dental shade guides and on tooth colour spaces. As part of this exploration, phenomena, e.g. changes and breaks in behaviour as well as highly individual developments in colour values, paradoxes between the values of subjective determination using shade guides and the values of objective measurements were identified and insights into the very complex colour dynamics through dehydration and rehydration were shown up to more than 8 days The development of the individual colour measurement values was based on the liquid flow through the tooth and its tissues in particular during drying and rehydration and gave information about dynamics and the temporal extent of these processes On the basis of this data Hoffmann had developed several methods for research and practice suggestions for feasible innovations such as monitoring of dental treatment to protect against pulp damage based on drying and reconstructing the colour of naturally moist teeth on those that have already dried the identification of the living and the dead human and animals via the dental fingerprint and a novel method of measuring the time of death for forensic medicine He also described a time limit of drying up to which relatively natural suitable colour values and shade matching results can be obtained and after which no colour determination should be carried out and he established the rehydration time after the end of the drying or dental treatment which must be waited in order to regain a natural tooth colour and to get correct values and results again His findings also show that teeth are able to store information on for example the condition liquid content colour values and the time within the drying and liquid re absorption chronology The author articulates a dental chronometer tooth clock dental data store tooth data store and a dental memory tooth memory and believes that significant progress in this field may include and could be achieved via a neural network for colour measurement apparatus A book for anyone interested in the natural sciences medical practice and depends on skilled information processing and decision making Medical students who will spend their working lives gathering information from patients making decisions and solving problems need to be taught the necessary techniques One aim of the book is therefore to give teachers an account of some of the basic ideas which have been applied to the diagnostic process and to medical problem solving in general Another aim is to make teachers more aware of the principles underlying their clinical work for it has been shown repeatedly that clinicians actions do not always coincide with their teaching and there is a distinct gap between what they do and what they teach This introduction to the fundamental concepts of information processing and decision making is written at a level which makes it appropriate reading for those who have not previously read widely in these areas It will be of interest to clinical teachers in medical and allied health
