Proceedings of the Thirty-second Conference on the Design of Experiments ,1987 Proceedings of the ... Conference on the Design of Experiments ,1987 Inadvertent Escalation

Barry R. Posen, 2014-01-13 In this sobering book Barry R Posen demonstrates how the interplay between conventional military operations and nuclear forces could in conflicts among states armed with both conventional and nuclear weaponry inadvertently produce pressures for nuclear escalation Knowledge of these hidden pressures he believes may help some future decision maker avoid catastrophe Building a formidable argument that moves with cumulative force he details the way in which escalation could occur not by mindless accident or by deliberate preference for nuclear escalation but rather as a natural accompaniment of land naval or air warfare at the conventional level Posen bases his analysis on an empirical study of the east west military competition in Europe during the 1980s using a conceptual framework drawn from international relations theory organization theory and strategic theory The lessons of his book however go well beyond the east west competition Since his observations are relevant to all military competitions between states armed with both conventional and nuclear weaponry his book speaks to some of the problems that attend the proliferation of nuclear weapons in longstanding regional conflicts Optimism that small and medium nuclear powers can easily achieve stable nuclear balances is he believes unwarranted

Military Operations Research N.K. Jaiswal, 2012-12-06 Operations Research OR emerged in an effort to improve the effectiveness of newly inducted weapons and equipment during World War II While rapid growth of OR led to its becoming an important aid to decision making in all sectors including defense its contribution in defense remained largely confined to classified reports Very few books dealing with applications of quantitative decision making techniques in military have been published presumably due to limited availability of relevant information The situation changed rapidly during the last few years The recognition of the subject of Military Operations Research MOR gave tremendous boost to its development Books and journals on MOR started appearing The number of sessions on MOR at national and international conferences also registered an increase The volume of teaching training and research activities in the field of MOR at military schools and non military schools enhanced considerably Military executives and commanders started taking increasing interest in getting scientific answers to questions pertaining to weapon acquisition threat perception and quantification assessment of damage or casualties evaluation of chance of winning a battle force mix deployment and targeting of weapons against enemy targets war games and scenario evaluation Most of these problems were being tackled on the basis of intuition judgment and experience or analysis under very simple assumptions In an increasingly sophisticated and complex defense scenario resulting in advances in equipment and communications the need for supplementing these practices by scientific research in MOR became imperative
