Sifeng Liu, Jeffrey Yi-Lin Forrest, 2010-06-28 This book contains contributions by some of the leading researchers in the area of grey systems theory and applications All the papers included in this volume are selected from the contributions physically presented at the 2009 IEEE International Conference on Grey Systems and Intelligent Services November 11 12 2009 Nanjing Jiangsu People s Republic of China This event was jointly sponsored by IEEE Systems Man and Cybernetics Society Natural Science Foundation of China and Grey Systems Society of China Additionally Nanjing University of Aeronautics and Astronautics also invested heavily in this event with its direct and indirect financial and administrative supports The conference aimed at bringing together all scholars and experts in the fields of grey systems and intelligent services from around the world to share their cutting edge research results exchange innovative ideas promote mutual understanding and seek potential opportunities for collaboration The conference program committee received 1054 full paper submissions from 16 countries and geographical regions Nine hundred sixty four papers were submitted for regular sessions and 90 papers were tunnelled directly for special topic sessions All the submitted papers including those aiming at special topic sessions were rigorously reviewed by at least 3 reviewers Based on the reviewers reports 251 papers were accepted for oral presentations while 99 accepted for poster presentations In other words only slightly over 33% of the submitted papers were accepted by this conference The rate of acceptance was lower than one third of the total submissions      Earthquake Processes:

Donnellan, Xiang-chu Yin, 2002-09-26 In the last decade of the 20th century there has been great progress in the physics of earthquake generation that is the introduction of laboratory based fault constitutive laws as a basic equation governing earthquake rupture quantitative description of tectonic loading driven by plate motion and a microscopic approach to study fault zone processes The fault constitutive law plays the role of an interface between microscopic processes in fault zones and macroscopic processes of a fault system and the plate motion connects diverse crustal activities with mantle dynamics An ambitious challenge for us is to develop realistic computer simulation models for the complete earthquake process on the basis of microphysics in fault zones and macro dynamics in the crust mantle system Recent advances in high performance computer technology and numerical simulation methodology are bringing this vision within reach The book consists of two parts and presents a cross section of cutting edge research in the field of computational earthquake physics Part I includes works on microphysics of rupture and fault constitutive laws and dynamic rupture wave propagation and strong ground motion Part II covers earthquake cycles crustal deformation plate dynamics and seismicity change and its physical interpretation Topics in Part II range from the 3 D simulations of earthquake generation cycles and interseismic crustal deformation associated with plate subduction to the development of new methods for analyzing geophysical and geodetical data and new simulation algorithms for large amplitude folding and mantle convection with viscoelastic brittle lithosphere as well as a theoretical study of accelerated seismic release on heterogeneous faults simulation of long range automaton models of earthquakes and various approaches to earthquake prediction based on underlying physical and or statistical models for seismicity change
