Art of the Yellow Springs Wu Hung, 2015-02-15 We might think the Egyptians were the masters of building tombs but no other civilization has devoted more time and resources to underground burial structures than the Chinese For at least five thousand years from the fourth millennium B C E to the early twentieth century the Chinese have been building some of the world's most elaborate tombs and furnishing them with exquisite objects It is these objects and the concept of the tomb as a treasure trove that The Art of the Yellow Springs seeks to critique drawing on recent scholarship to examine memorial sites the way they were meant to be experienced not as a mere store of individual works but as a work of art itself Wu Hung bolsters some of the new trends in Chinese art history that have been challenging the conventional ways of studying funerary art Examining the interpretative methods themselves that guide the study of memorials he argues that in order to understand Chinese tombs one must not necessarily forget the individual works present in them as the beautiful color plates here will prove but consider them along with a host of other art historical concepts These include notions of visuality viewership space analysis function and context The result is a ground breaking new assessment that demonstrates the amazing richness of one of the longest running traditions in the whole of art history

the connections between local and national politics and rural and urban experience The History of the People's Republic of China, 1949-1976 Julia Strauss, 2007-06-11 Examines the People's Republic of China between 1949 and 1976 from an explicitly historical perspective Taming China's Wilderness Patrick Fuliang Shan, 2016-04-01 Until the beginning of the twentieth century the Chinese province of Heilongjiang historically known as Northern Manchuria remained a sparsely populated territory on the northeastern frontier For about two centuries the rulers of the Qing dynasty 1644-1912 whose historical homeland was in Manchuria enforced a policy that prohibited Chinese immigration and settlement and maintained the region's reputation as the Great Northern Wilderness Yet as this new study demonstrates by the early 20th century the Chinese government reversed its previous policy and began to encourage immigration into Heilongjiang turning a backwater into a thriving frontier region Covering the period between the reversal of the anti immigration policy around 1900 and the Japanese occupation of Heilongjiang in 1931 this book investigates this distinctive frontier and the impact upon it of the settlement of four million Chinese settlers during a thirty one year period Following an introduction providing a background to the period covered the study is divided into five chapters The first chapter looks at patterns of immigration settlement and the features of the newly developing frontier society Chapter two then deals with land possession tenure and relations amongst the newly arrived settlers The third chapter discusses the transformation of the ethnic make up of the region and the move from a largely nomadic culture to one of settled farmers Chapter four probes the social problems these changes caused particularly banditry The final chapter revises commonly held notions about Russian dominance of the region arguing that Russia's influence was limited to the railway zone Taken together these chapters not only provide an overview of a territory undergoing rapid and sustained change but also provide insights into wider Chinese history as well as adding to the on going scholarly interest in border and frontier studies Chen Jiru (1558-1639) Jamie Greenbaum, 2007-12-15 Chen Jiru 1558-1639 was one of the great late Ming arbiters of culture and taste and the impact of his innovations can still be traced in present day China In late Ming when culture and taste enjoyed a social prestige beyond their usual standing Chen's influence appears even greater than it may have otherwise This is the first major work in any language to examine Chen's background make a contrastive study of the genres he utilised in forging his literary reputation and to examine the use that publishers and others have made since of the literary personae he constructed A study clearly of interest to historians of early Modern China as well as to those who study cultural and print histories of both East and West
