in our imaginations as it does in our surroundings as this scintillating book reveals Each chapter immerses the reader in a single colour drawing together stories from the histories of art and humanity to illuminate the meanings it has been given over the eras and around the globe Showing how artists scientists writers philosophers explorers and inventors have both shaped and been shaped by these wonderfully myriad meanings James Fox reveals how through colour we can better understand their cultures as well as our own Each colour offers a fresh perspective on a different epoch and together they form a vivid exhilarating history of the world We have projected our hopes anxieties and obsessions onto colour for thousands of years Fox writes The history of colour therefore is also a history of humanity Einstein, Tagore and the Nature of Reality Partha Ghose,2016-06-23

The nature of reality has been a long debated issue among scientists and philosophers In 1930 Rabindranath Tagore and Albert Einstein had a long conversation on the nature of reality This conversation has been widely quoted and discussed by scientists philosophers and scholars from the literary world The important question that Tagore and Einstein discussed was whether the world is a unity dependent on humanity or the world is a reality independent on the human factor Einstein took the stand adopted by Western philosophers and mathematicians namely that reality is something independent of the mind and the human factor Tagore on the other hand adopted the opposite view Nevertheless both Einstein and Tagore claimed to be realists despite the fundamental differences between their conceptions of reality Where does the difference lie Can it be harmonized at some deeper level Can Wittgenstein for example be a bridge between the two views This collection of essays explores these two fundamentally different conceptions of the nature of reality from the perspectives of theories of space time quantum theory general philosophy of science cognitive science and mathematics
