The Immunology of Malignant Disease Joseph G. Sinkovics, Jules E. Harris, 1970      Immunology of Malignant Diseases V.S. Byers, R. W. Baldwin, 2012-12-06 Over the past 5 years clinical immunology as a whole has advanced more rapidly than over the past 20 years Many of these advances have been due to monoclonal antibody technology with its ability to identify antigens on tumour cells with a precision never before available Monoclonal antibodies have the ability to identify subsets of human T lymphocytes and aid in diagnosis of both immunodeficiency disorders such as AIDS or autoimmune diseases and they can be adapted as drug targeting agents Additionally however major advances have been made in identifying immunomodulating agents and the last year has seen two such agents IL 2 and OKT3 made available commercially for such intervention Furthermore another immuno modulating technique bone marrow transplantation has now been established as a curative modality in leukaemia treatment A central issue in tumour immunology is whether human tumours express antigens which can be termed tumour specific This has important implications for both tumour immunity as well as drug targeting This issue is considered in detail by R A Robins in the introductory chapter in which the expression of antigens in human tumours is compared with that in experimentally induced animal tumours This controversial issue is also considered in later chapters by Bast in breast carcinoma Riimke and de Vries in melanoma V mky in lung cancer Armitage in colorectal cancer and Paulie and Perlmann in bladder carcinoma      The Immunology of Malignant Disease Jules E.
