The Nonresponse Challenge to Surveys and Statistics Douglas S. Massey, Roger Tourangeau, 2012-12-28 Surveys are the principal source of data not only for social science but for consumer research political polling and federal statistics In response to social and technological trends rates of survey nonresponse have risen markedly in recent years prompting observers to worry about the continued validity of surveys as a tool for data gathering Newspaper stories magazine articles radio programs television broadcasts and Internet blogs are filled with data derived from surveys of one sort or another Reputable media outlets generally indicate whether a survey is representative but much of the data routinely bandied about in the media and on the Internet are not based on representative samples and are of dubious use in making accurate statements about the populations they purport to represent Surveys are social interactions and like all interactions between people they are embedded within social structures and guided by shared cultural understandings This issue of The ANNALS examines the difficulties with finding willing respondents to these surveys and how the changing structure of society whether it be the changing family structure mass immigration rising inequality or the rise of technology has presented new issues to conducting surveys This volume will be of interest to faculty and students who specialize in sociological movements as well as economic and immigration movements and its effect on surveying New York Supplement ,1908 Includes decisions of the Supreme Court and various intermediate and lower courts of record May Aug 1888 Sept Dec 1895 Superior Court of New York City Mar Apr 1926 Dec 1937 Jan 1938 Court of Appeals Decisions and Orders of the National Labor Relations Board, V. 328, April 7, 1999 Through August 31, 1999 , Handbook of Survey Methodology for the Social Sciences Lior Gideon,2012-06-21 Surveys enjoy great ubiquity among data collection methods in social research they are flexible in questioning techniques in the amount of questions asked in the topics covered and in the various ways of interactions with respondents Surveys are also the preferred method by many researchers in the social sciences due to their ability to provide quick profiles and results Because they are so commonly used and fairly easy to administer surveys are often thought to be easily thrown together But designing an effective survey that yields reliable and valid results takes more than merely asking questions and waiting for the answers to arrive Geared to the non statistician the Handbook of Survey Methodology in Social Sciences addresses issues throughout all phases of survey design and implementation Chapters examine the major survey methods of data collection providing expert guidelines for asking targeted questions improving accuracy and quality of responses while reducing sampling and non sampling bias Relying on the Total Survey Error theory various issues of both sampling and non sampling sources of error are explored and discussed By covering all aspects of the topic the Handbook is suited to readers taking their first steps in survey methodology as well as to those already involved in survey design and execution and to those currently in training Featured in the Handbook The Total Survey Error sampling and non sampling errors Survey sampling techniques The art of question phrasing Techniques for increasing response rates A question of ethics what is allowed in survey research Survey design face to face phone mail e mail online computer assisted Dealing with sensitive issues in surveys Demographics of respondents implications for future survey research Dealing with nonresponse and nonresponse bias The Handbook of Survey Methodology in Social Sciences offers how to clarity for researchers in the social and behavioral sciences and related disciplines including sociology criminology criminal justice social psychology education public health political science management and many other disciplines relying on survey methodology as one of their main data collection tools Total Survey Error in Practice Paul P. The Impact of Personality on Participation Decisions in Surveys Denise Saßenroth,2013-05-13 Increasing nonresponse rates in surveys are a matter of concern internationally as low response rates put the quality of survey data into question The risk of biased data is high if nonrespondents differ significantly from respondents In arguing that sample persons personality traits are decisive in survey participation decisions Denise Sa enroth investigates the mechanisms causing increasing nonresponse rates Based on a modification of the Social Isolation Hypothesis she analyses the impact of sample persons personality on participation decisions with data from the German General Social Survey and the LISS Panel from the Netherlands

The Plight of Older Workers Isabel Baumann,2016-09-08 This open access book examines the economic social and psychological consequences of manufacturing plant closure at the individual level Using an original data set of over 1 200 workers from Switzerland who lost their manufacturing jobs after the financial crisis of 2008 the author analyzes the determinants of reemployment the sector of reemployment and the change in wages over a two year period In addition coverage also explores how plant closure affects the social relationship between a displaced worker and his or her significant other which includes a discussion of the coping strategies on the household level as well as how changes in a worker s social and occupational life affects overall satisfaction Readers will discover that the burden of structural change disproportionately falls on the shoulders of workers aged 55 and older who often face substantial barriers when trying to return to employment A larger portion of this group experience long term unemployment and those who do manage to find a new job often suffer disproportionate wage loss This result is intriguing in the context of the current demographic change and contradicts the common assumption that young and low qualified individuals are at greatest risk of unemployment Advanced age and not low education appears to be the primary obstacle to workers finding job satisfaction after being laid off because of market conditions The English Reports ,1901
