

An aerial photograph of a river delta, showing a complex network of water channels and sediment bars. The water is a deep blue, while the sediment appears lighter, creating a high-contrast, intricate pattern. The perspective is from directly above, looking down at the river's mouth where it meets the sea.

Critical Humanities from India D. Venkat Rao,2018-03-09 The field of humanities generates a discourse that traditionally addressed the questions of what is proper to man rights of man crimes against humanity human creativity and action human reflection and performance human utterance and artefact The university as a philosophical political institution transmits this humanist account This European humanistic legacy which is little more than Christian anthropology barely received any questioning from cultures that faced colonialism In such a context this volume attempts to unravel the barely secularized heritage of Europe Derrida s phrase and its fatal consequences in other cultures The task of Critical Humanities is to explore the ways in which the question of being human along with non human others today from heterogeneous cultural backgrounds can be undertaken The future of the humanities teaching and research is contingent upon the risky task of configuring cultural difference from non European locations Such a task is inescapable and urgently needed when tectonic cultural upheavals have begun to show devastating effect on planetary coexistence today It is precisely in such a context that this collection of essays on critical humanities affirms without alibi the urgency of collective reflection and innovative research across the traditional disciplinary and institutional borders and communication systems on the one hand and Asian African and European cultural formations on the other Critical Humanities are at one level little more than communities on the verge critical but whose centuries long survival and resilient creations of cultural and as natural habitats are of deeply enduring significance to affirm the biocultural diversities of living that compose the planet Topical and timely this book will be useful to scholars researchers and teachers of cultural theory literary studies philosophy cultural geography legal studies sociology history performance studies environmental studies caste and communalism studies postcolonial theory India studies and education

Geomorphology and Environmental Impact Assessment M. Marchetti,V. Rivas,2001-01-01 This volume focuses on the close relationship between geomorphology and environmental impact assessment and provides a wide ranging overview of this topic It includes several case studies covering a variety of environmental impacts derived from human activities quarrying communication infrastructure etc on different geomorphologic components landforms soil landscapes etc and environments glacial fluvial coastal etc The case studies presented offer a methodological guide from the most traditional geomorphological approaches through to the use of spatial data analysis and GIS tools and techniques Environmental Impact Assessment is a relatively new scientific branch in which a wide variety of specialists are increasingly becoming involved This volume will be of interest to geomorphologists biologists geographers architects and engineers
