

The background of the entire image is a close-up photograph of dried rose petals. The petals are in various stages of decay, showing a range of colors from pale yellow to deep, dusty rose. They are scattered across a light-colored, textured surface, possibly paper or fabric. The lighting is soft, creating gentle shadows and highlighting the delicate, crumpled texture of the dried petals.

The Claverings is filled with contemporary detail and shows as Trollope often does the weakness of men and the emotional strength of women. The Claverings II Trollope A., 2019 Anthony Trollope 1815-1882 was an English novelist of the Victorian era. Among his best known works is a series of novels collectively known as the Chronicles of Barsetshire which revolves around the imaginary county of Barsetshire. The Claverings is a novel about a young man starting out in life who must find himself a profession and a wife and of a young woman who made a marriage of convenience and must abide the consequences. Since its first appearance in 1867 this novel has been acclaimed as one of Trollope's most successful portrayals of mid Victorian life.

Could she not find words to tell him that it might all be his? Could she not say to him, Harry Clavering, all this is nothing in my hands. Take it into your hands and it will prosper. Then it was that she went to her desk and attempted to write to him. She did write to him a completed note offering herself and all that was hers for his acceptance. In doing so she strove hard to be honest and yet not over bold to be affectionate and yet not unfeminine. Long she sat holding her head with one hand while the other attempted to use the pen which would not move over the paper. At length quickly it flew across the sheet and a few lines were there for her to peruse. About the Publisher: Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
