The Columbia Guide to Social Work Writing Warren Green, Barbara Levy Simon, 2012-07-17 Social work practitioners write for a variety of publications and they are expected to show fluency in a number of related fields Whether the target is a course instructor scholarly journal fellowship organization or general news outlet social workers must be clear persuasive and comprehensive in their writing especially on provocative subjects This first of its kind guide features top scholars and educators providing a much needed introduction to social work writing and scholarship Foregrounding the process of social work writing the coeditors particularly emphasize how to think about and approach one's subject in a productive manner The guide begins with an overview of social work writing from the 1880s to the present and then follows with ideal strategies for academic paper writing social work journal writing and social work research writing A section on applied professional writing addresses student composition in field education writing for and about clinical practice the effective communication of policy information to diverse audiences program and proposal development advocacy and administrative writing The concluding section focuses on specific fields of practice including writing on child and family welfare contemporary social issues aging and intervention in global contexts Grounding their essays in systematic observations induction and deduction and a wealth of real world examples the contributors describe the conceptualization development and presentation of social work writing in ways that better secure its power and relevance

Human Behavior Theory and Social Work Practice Roberta Greene, 2017-09-08 This new edition of Human Behavior Theory and Social Work Practice provides a broadly synthetic approach to selecting theoretical concepts crucial to one's activities in casework Centered on the notion of the client as an individual Roberta Greene and the contributing authors examine the biological psychological and social aspects of development and evaluate their utility for social work practice Social work is characterized by a dynamic helping process and a diversity of roles and functions The aims of social work to improve societal conditions for individuals families and groups are put into action across all fields of practice and realized through a variety of methods in a range of settings To work in the field it is important to acquire conceptual frameworks that help one understand the complexities of contemporary practice This volume is concerned with the application of knowledge about behavior in the social environment that serves as the theoretical underpinning for direct practice in social work The chapters explore the ways in which specific theories have contributed to understanding the person in the environment construct and examine the idea that all clinical social work intervention is anchored in reshaping the context of the person in the environment configuration The book explores the challenges and limitations of the various theories in use and addresses many relevant questions What does the theory offer for understanding development across the lifecycle What does each theory suggest about the interaction among biological psychological and sociocultural factors of human development and functioning What does the theory suggest about healthy functional and unhealthy dysfunctional behaviors or wellness Is theory universal in its application and may it lend itself to cross cultural social work practice What role does theory propose for the social worker as an agent of change Human Behavior Theory and Social Work Practice is an original contribution to social work theory and will be mandatory reading for anyone pursuing a career in the field University of Michigan

Official Publication , 1960 Evidence Based and Knowledge Based Social Work Inge M. Bryderup, 2008-12-01 Policymakers in welfare democracies throughout the world are raising questions as to whether welfare systems deliver what the public expects and focus attention on increasing costs Social workers need more evidence and knowledge about an increasing diversity of social work practices Users of social welfare are increasingly individualized and made responsible for choosing and delivering their own service through contracts and this makes politicians social workers and users more interested in evidence and knowledge about social services even though these interests are often conflicting These tendencies might be part of the reasons why the evaluation of social work practice seems to be characterized at present by a variety and diversity of research methods approaches and theories
