Both historical and contemporary features of Canadian social welfare are explored in this wide ranging and in depth collection Social Fabric or Patchwork Quilt explores the evolution of the Canadian social welfare state from a system based upon voluntarism and philanthropy to one in which the State's involvement has increased considerably. It also shows how the roles of governments at all levels have changed in recent times. Chapters describe the developing Canadian welfare state from Confederation to the present. Beginning with an integrative framework in the general introduction, the selected essays represent many perspectives: chronological, regional, multidisciplinary, and ideological. An important feature of this collection is the consideration of providers and recipients. Such wide-ranging outlooks are possible given the diverse backgrounds of contributors which include historians, sociologists, social workers, public policy experts, and political scientists. As well as historical and sociological studies, topics include key programs discussed in detail, the quality of services received by principal target groups, new directions in research, some contributions even revisit foundational older works and key government documents.

Reframing Global Social Policy Christopher Deeming, Paul Smyth, 2018. As neoliberalism begins to reach its limits and the new landscape of social and public policy that it has left in its wake becomes clearer, there is a great need to define and explain the new roles that social policy, non-governmental organizations, and citizens are taking on. Featuring leading Canadian and international scholars, it builds on existing scholarship on socially responsible investment.

and on the growing interest of the Canadian labour movement in joint trusteeship What is unique about this collection is that it synthesizes three distinct themes socially responsible investment pension funds and labour studies The contributors address an array of critical issues such as gaps in the education of union trustees of pension funds the impact of human capital criteria on shareholder returns the influence of corporate engagement upon corporate performance and the nature of public private partnerships PPPs Although the essays in Pensions at Work all address the nexus between socially responsible investment pension funds and unions each looks at a particular manifestation of that relationship through a different disciplinary lens This collection moves the discussion to pension funds in which union representatives are also trustees a relatively new approach that will be of great interest to institutional investors the labour movement and instructors in labour studies programs
