focus of political popular and scholarly debates around the future of our world's Energy Increasing consumption dwindling reserves climate warming and developing technologies are expected to push energy related activities ever further into the previously inaccessible north Within this framework energy in the Arctic is predominantly understood as synonymous with oil and gas production for international exports meanwhile any social sustainability concerns associated with energy related developments remain largely neglected or reduced to regional socioeconomic concerns Lempinen adopts an alternative approach exploring how energy and its societal aspects are defined and debated in the context of the circumpolar north Combining an in depth conceptual discussion on energy and the social dimension of sustainability with an empirical focus on the scientific and political truths produced about energy and society in the Arctic energyscape this book is an enlightening read for students scholars and professionals interested in issues related to energy and society in the Arctic or beyond

From Individual Wellbeing to Regional Priorities Silva Larson, 2011-07-12 The understanding of subjective perceptions of wellbeing that is the perceived needs and current levels of satisfactions of people could provide valuable information for policy and decision makers It would allow for the mapping of the envisaged impacts of policy against things that people value and care about thus providing information about the positive and negative potential of different policy options to impact upon human welfare In this book Dr Silva Larson takes us on a journey of explorations into the things that are important to people She argues that an approach which takes into account both what people value most and how satisfied they are with the current state of affairs would assist decision makers with identifying perceived regional priorities Further she proposes and describes one such approach that of using a quantitative composite value that combines both types of information and demonstrates using two shires in the Great Barrier Reef region of Australia as examples how this can be done The resulting action lists identify and quantify the unsatisfied needs of most importance to most people in the region that is factors that have high potential to improve the quality of life of residents if restored

Handbook of Social Problems George Ritzer, 2004 Ritzer's Handbook of Social Problems offers a comprehensive treatment of today's major societal issues The articles are authored by some of the top scholars in the field and address problem areas that will capture the interests of students and professors alike The international coverage is most welcome in this time of intensifying global inequalities Nancy Jurik Arizona State University The Handbook of Social Problems A Comparative International Perspective provides a unique broadly comparative perspective on the current state of social problems and deviance in a variety of societies around the world Editor George Ritzer along with leading U S and international sociologists examines the relationship between social problems and a society's level of development and affluence The essays in this volume focus on four interrelated issues involved in the relationship between social problems and the level of development and affluence Less developed and less affluent societies are more likely to experience a range of social problems than developed and affluent societies Affluence causes or at least brings with it a series of social problems that do not exist in less affluent societies It is only with affluence that certain things can come to be imagined as social problems such as excessive consumption The very affluence of a society makes it vulnerable to problems that would not be social problems in poorer societies The Handbook explores the theory of the weakness of the strong in other words strong or wealthy nations may have greater vulnerability to some social problems than less developed or affluent societies This theory is clearly illustrated in this volume by the aftermath of September 11 2001 depicting the vulnerability of the U S to social problems in far removed corners of the world In addition the international and comparative essays in this volume cover other important issues such as the impact of modern technologies on social problems ecological problems global inequality health as a social problem and much more The Handbook of Social Problems is a vital resource for sociologists and graduate students as well as an excellent addition to any academic library Global Governance of Food Production and Consumption Peter Oosterveer, 2007-01-01 The provision of food is undergoing radical transformations throughout the global community Peter Oosterveer argues that as a consequence conventional national governmental regulations can no longer adequately respond to existing and emerging food risks and to environmental concerns This book examines these challenges Rethinking Locality in Japan Sonja Ganseforth, Hanno Jentsch, 2021-07-19 This book inquires what is meant when we say local and what local means in the Japanese context Through the window of locality it enhances an understanding of broader political and socio economic shifts in Japan This includes demographic change electoral and administrative reform rural decline and revitalization welfare reform as well as the growing metabolic rift in energy and food production Chapters throughout this edited volume discuss the different and often contested ways in which locality in Japan has been reconstituted from historical and contemporary instances of administrative restructuring to more subtle social processes of making and unmaking local places Contributions from multiple disciplinary perspectives are included to investigate the tensions between overlapping and often incongruent dimensions of locality Framed by a theoretical discussion of socio spatial thinking such issues surrounding the construction and renegotiation of local places are not only relevant for Japan specialists but also connected with topical scholarly debates further afield Accordingly Rethinking Locality in Japan will appeal to students and scholars from Japanese studies and human geography to anthropology history sociology and political science Communicating Risk Jonathan Crichton, Christopher N. Candlin, Arthur S. Firkins, 2016-01-05 We live in world increasingly shaped by risk a fact underscored by recent events in the financial markets science and technology environmental policy and biosecurity law enforcement and criminal justice Risk assessment has become a central concern of governments organisations and the professions and the communication of risk is a crucial part of professional work Exploring how risk is discursively constructed across these domains is therefore central to our understanding of how professional practice affects people s lives Communicating Risk takes up this challenge with contributions from leading researchers and practitioners that examine key issues of risk communication across diverse professional domains Economics and Ecological Risk Assessment Randall J. F. Bruins, Matthew T. Heberling, 2004-12-28

With contributions from a wide array of economists ecologists and government agency professionals Economics and Ecological Risk Assessment Applications to Watershed Management provides a multidisciplinary approach to environmental decision making at a watershed level It introduces the fields of ecological risk assessment ERA and economic ana

Governing the Air Rolf Lidskog, Göran Sundqvist, 2011 Experts offer theoretical and empirical analyses that view the regulation of transboundary air pollution as a dynamic process Governing the Air looks at the regulation of air pollution not as a static procedure of enactment and agreement but as a dynamic process that reflects the shifting interrelationships of science policy and citizens Taking transboundary air pollution in Europe as its empirical focus the book not only assesses the particular regulation strategies that have evolved to govern European air but also offers theoretical insights into dynamics of social order political negotiation and scientific practices These dynamics are of pivotal concern today in light of emerging international governance problems related to climate change The contributors all prominent social scientists specializing in international environmental governance review earlier findings analyze the current situation and discuss future directions for both empirical and theoretical work The chapters discuss the institutional dimensions of international efforts to combat air pollution examining the effectiveness of CLRTAP Convention for Long Range Transboundary Air Pollution and the political complexity of the European Union offer a broad overview and detailed case studies of the roles of science expertise and learning and examine the missing link in air pollution policies citizen involvement Changing political conditions evolving scientific knowledge and the need for citizen engagement offer significant challenges for air pollution policy making By focusing on process rather than product learning rather than knowledge and strategies rather than interests this book gives a nuanced view of how air pollution is made governable
