Parma,2012-12-06 The Netherlands like the other industrialized countries in the northern hemisphere is faced with increasing environmental problems Being a country rich in water at least in terms of surface area and low lying problems related to water are as old as the nation itself The problems in regard to water quality are becoming more acute and complicated due to the progressive rise in air and ground pollution Glaring examples are the acid rains and contamination of ground water resources by toxic and often illegal waste dumps Being a delta country the Netherlands is also very vulnerable to pollution from the water sources outside the country's national boundaries i.e the rivers Rhine Meuse and Scheldt Not only the national but also the international authorities are active in developing measures to both prevent and combat water pollution and to restore as far as possible the natural balance or a reasonable water quality The pollution abatement programmes are based on ecological theories accepting waterbodies as aquatic ecosystems the authorities concerned try to influence and lead the progresses in the systems to reach or maintain the desired ecosystem structure Suter II 1981 mentioned a number of reasons why the attempts to use ecosystem theories to assess the impacts on the environment have been disappointing to date It is clear that one of the reasons for the failure is lack of proper knowledge
