

Mile 28.5 to Mile 34 - Map 6

Start at the bottom! That means from bottom to top on all map pages following the river's flow!

Looking upstream toward Tango Creek Rapid over Tango Bar Camp

Little Niagara is named for the main drop, which comes from (lower photo), but there are two more parts that require maneuvering (upper photo)

Mile 31.8, Left - Krappier Camp is a sloping sandy campsite with a large tree in the middle of the beach.

Mile 31.8, Left - Tango Bar Camp is a large sandbar camp that becomes an island and eventually floods at higher water levels. The sandy landing is used to catch water in a small eddy. Land just upstream from the cliff on the downstream end of the bar. This camp offers shady tent spots and a large beach suitable for volleyball, fishing, or boating. It is popular for layovers, or have an alternate campsite in case if you find it occupied.

Mile 32.8, Right - Tango Creek Camp is a northern island camp just below Tango Creek Rapid. It is located on a high beach next to the river trail, so it is most suitable for high water use when Tango Bar Camp may be flooded. Stay here to wait when the water is high if you plan to camp at Tango Bar.

Mile 32.9 - Tango Creek Rapid is a fairly easy 5-metre wide water going against the rock ledge on the left or the bottom.

Mile 32.9 - A class II sand-and-run boulder garden is here.

Mile 33.8, Right - Mosier Creek Camp is at the mouth of Mosier Creek. The landing and bank are rocky. There are three small, sandy tent sites on the upstream side of the creek and one on the downstream side. A larger camping area is on the high beach on the downstream side of the creek, but it's a rocky hard to get your gear up there.

Mile 31.2 - Osprey Rapid occurs where the river widens and bends right. The current runs over through a boulder garden, then barrels down and piles against a rock projection on the right bank.

Mile 30.9 - Mosier Rapid is among a series of short rapids below Lake Pasa Creek. The main drop is at the location indicated just around a left-hand bend. This is another boulder drop with the largest rocks along the right side and main channel.

Mile 30.1, Right - Lower Cedar Flats has a small, well-defined broad beach behind a row of cedars. There are a couple more tent sites behind the beach among the trees and shrubs.

Mile 29.8, Right - Upper Cedar Flats Camp is a small, low-water sandbar at the base of a rocky slope.

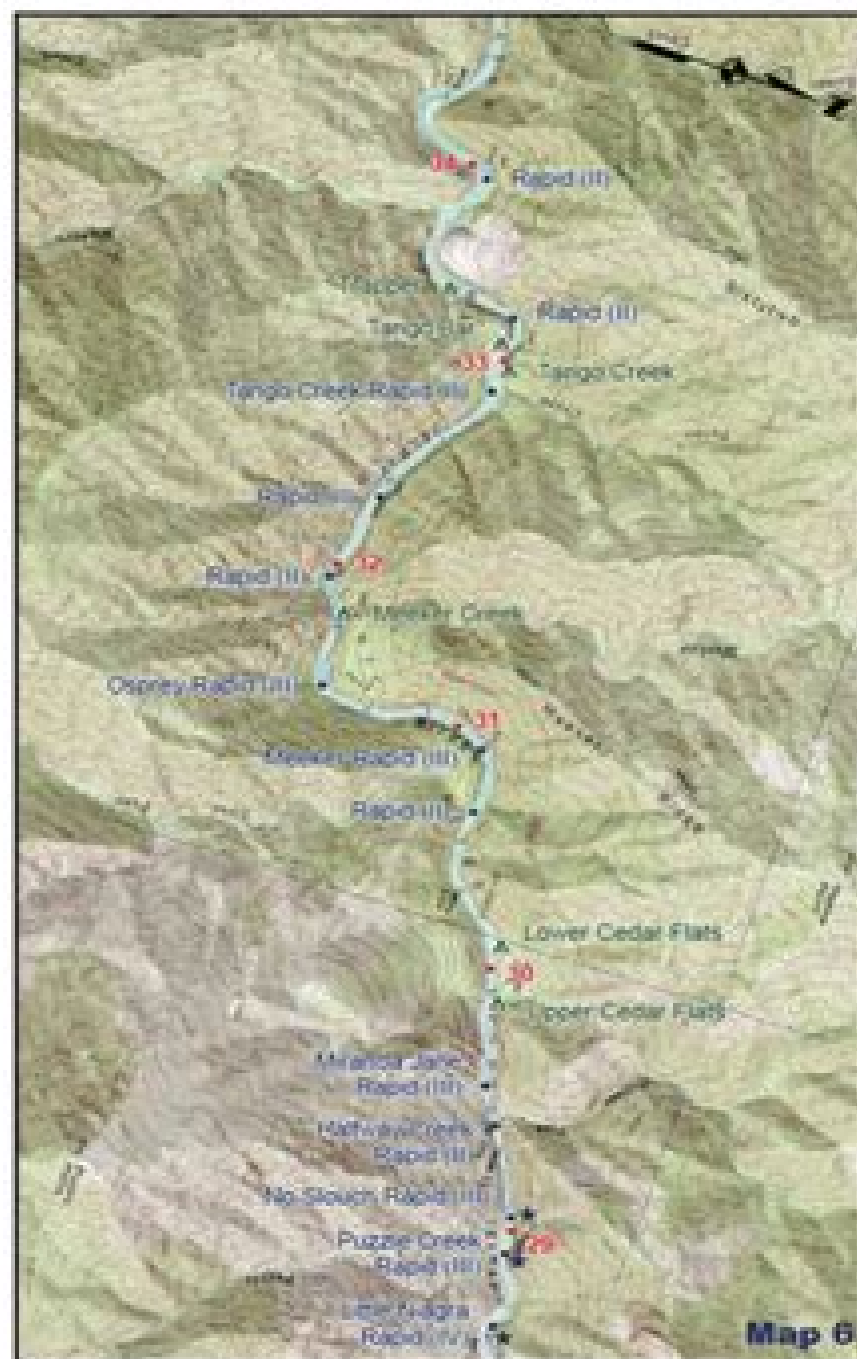

Mile 29.6 - Miranda Jane Rapid is fairly straightforward for a class III rapid.

Mile 29.4 - Halfway Creek Rapid: most boulders, more holes, rock-and-run if you're well upright.

Mile 29.3 - No Slouch Rapid immediately follows Purple Creek. At medium to high water levels you may not even be able to tell the difference since they run together. No Slouch has more huge boulders on the right side and boulders across the river near the bottom. Scout this one from the trail.

Mile 29.3 - Purple Creek Rapid is a very short distance below the second rock garden of Little Niagara. This rapid has large boulders on the right side that form some monster boat flipping holes at medium to high water levels. The rapid ends in a cross-wide ledge drop of about four feet. This is best created by hiking down the trail from just below Little Rapid.

Mile 28.6 - Little Niagara Rapid occurs where a backdrop dam forces the water over drops on the right and left sides of the river (all flow goes right at low water). The best run is close to the cliff face on the right at all water levels since running too far left will carry you over a higher part of the drop where a flip is more likely. There are two rock gardens immediately below the main drop of Little Niagara. Run the first one on river right, then ferry to the left to avoid the second. Little Niagara can best be created by pulling to the right bank immediately after Little Rapid, climbing up to the river trail, and following the trail downstream.

Book Banning in 21st-Century America Emily J. M. Knox, 2015-01-16 Requests for the removal relocation and restriction of books also known as challenges occur with some frequency in the United States Book Banning in 21st Century American Libraries based on thirteen contemporary book challenge cases in schools and public libraries across the United States argues that understanding contemporary reading practices especially interpretive strategies is vital to understanding why people attempt to censor books in schools and public libraries Previous research on censorship tends to focus on legal frameworks centered on Supreme Court cases historical case studies and bibliographies of texts that are targeted for removal or relocation and is often concerned with how censorship occurs The current project on the other hand is focused on the why of censorship and posits that many censorship behaviors and practices such as challenging books are intimately tied to the how one understands the practice of reading and its effects on character development and behavior It discusses reading as a social practice that has changed over time and encompasses different physical modalities and interpretive strategies In order to understand why people challenge books it presents a model of how the practice of reading is understood by challengers including what it means to read a text and especially how one constructs the idea of appropriate reading materials The book is based on three different kinds sources The first consists of documents including requests for reconsideration and letters obtained via Freedom of Information Act requests to governing bodies produced in the course of challenge cases Recordings of book challenge public hearings constitute the second source of data Finally the third source of data is interviews with challengers themselves The book offers a model of the reading practices of challengers It demonstrates that challengers are particularly influenced by what might be called a literal common sense orientation to text wherein there is little room for polysemic interpretation multiple meanings for text That is the meaning of texts is always clear and there is only one avenue for interpretation This common sense interpretive strategy is coupled with what Cathy Davidson calls undisciplined imagination wherein the reader is unable to maintain distance between the events in a text and his or her own response These reading practices broaden our understanding of why people attempt to censor books in public institutions

Stories of Transformative Learning Michael

Kroth, Patricia Cranton, 2014-11-04 Stories of Transformative Learning is intended to encourage people to explore the potential for transformative learning in their lives practices and communities This book illustrates the transformative learning process through ten stories of individuals from both inside and outside of the classroom Adult educators and adult learners will find the book to be personally insightful and professionally useful There have been many accounts of transformative learning experiences but it is not often that we have the opportunity to hear first hand personal stories of transformative learning Here ten stories are told directly by the people who experienced them with additional commentary from the authors These stories are intended to resonate with readers and to inspire people to create the conditions where transformative learning can occur in their lives and professional practice Storytelling is one way in which both educators and learners can understand the process of transformative learning Telling stories reading others stories and contemplating our own stories all help us to become aware of alternative perspectives a process that is at the heart of critical reflection and critical self reflection which is in turn central to transformative learning We hope to increase readers sense of agency and more self directed self fulfilling lives By demonstrating how others have examined and reconsidered otherwise hidden assumptions that constrained the quality and potential of their lives we show readers how they may do the same
