Frug,2001-02-20 American metropolitan areas today are divided into neighborhoods of privilege and poverty often along lines of ethnicity and race City residents traveling through these neighborhoods move from feeling at home to feeling like tourists to feeling so out of place they fear for their security As Gerald Frug shows this divided and inhospitable urban landscape is not simply the result of individual choices about where to live or start a business It is the product of government policies and in particular the policies embedded in legal rules A Harvard law professor and leading expert on urban affairs Frug presents the first ever analysis of how legal rules shape modern cities and outlines a set of alternatives to bring down the walls that now keep city dwellers apart Frug begins by describing how American law treats cities as subdivisions of states and shows how this arrangement has encouraged the separation of metropolitan residents into different sometimes hostile groups He explains in clear accessible language the divisive impact of rules about zoning redevelopment land use and the organization of such city services as education and policing He pays special attention to the underlying role of anxiety about strangers the widespread desire for good schools and the pervasive fear of crime Ultimately Frug calls for replacing the current legal definition of cities with an alternative based on what he calls community building an alternative that gives cities within the same metropolitan region incentives to forge closer links with each other An incisive study of the legal roots of today s urban problems City Making is also an optimistic and compelling blueprint for enabling American cities once again to embrace their historic role of helping people reach an accommodation with those who live in the same geographic area no matter how dissimilar they are Clubbing Ben Malbon,2002-03-11 Clubbing explores the cultures and spaces of clubbing Divided into three sections Beginnings The Night Out and Reflections Clubbing includes first hand accounts of clubbing experiences framing these accounts within the relevant research and a review of clubbing in late 1990s Britain Malbon particularly focuses on the codes of social interaction among clubbers issues of gender and sexuality the effects of music the role of ecstasy clubbing as a playful act and personal interpretations of clubbing experiences The City of the Lost, and Other Short Allegorical Sermons.
