Lambert, 2000-02-09 Investigations of skeletal remains from key archaeological sites reveal new data and offer insights on prehistoric life and health in the Southeast The shift from foraging to farming had important health consequences for prehistoric peoples but variations in health existed within communities that had made this transition This new collection draws on the rich bioarchaeological record of the Southeastern United States to explore variability in health and behavior within the age of agriculture It offers new perspectives on human adaptation to various geographic and cultural landscapes across the entire Southeast from Texas to Virginia and presents new data from both classic and little known sites The contributors question the reliance on simple cause and effect relationships in human health and behavior by addressing such key bioarchaeological issues as disease history and epidemiology dietary composition and sufficiency workload stress patterns of violence mortuary practices and biological consequences of European contact They also advance our understanding of agriculture by showing that uses of maize were more varied than has been previously supposed Representing some of the best work being done today by physical anthropologists this volume provides new insights into human adaptation for both archaeologists and osteologists It attests to the heterogeneous character of Southeastern societies during the late prehistoric and early historic periods while effectively detailing the many factors that have shaped biocultural evolution Interim Report on Excavations at the Tatham Mound, Citrus County, Florida Jeffrey M. Emerson Poe and Dickinson among others A series of longer place oriented narratives explore familiar and lesser known literary works from the sixteenth century invasion of Florida through the Mexican War of 1846 1848 and the American Civil War Shorter chapters bridge the book s central themes the mapping of cognitive and physical space our personal stake in reading the tensions that follow earlier acts of erasure and the impossibility of ever fully shutting out the past Exploring complex cultural histories and contemporary landscapes filled with ghosts and new voices this volume draws inspiration from a tradition of travel place oriented and literature based works ranging from William Carlos Williams s In the American Grain and Jack Kerouac s On the Road to Alice Walker s In Search of Our Mother s Gardens Wendy Lesser s Why I Read The Serious Pleasure of Books and Rebecca Mead s My Life in Middlemarch An accompanying bibliographic essay is periodically updated and available at Hallock s website www.roadcourse.us
