Globalization and Corporate Taxation Mr. Manmohan S. Kumar, Mr. Dennis P. Quinn, 2012-10-22 This paper analyzes the extent to which the degree of international economic integration both financial and trade affects corporate tax rates It explores this issue in the context of strategic behavior by countries taking into account other global and domestic political economy factors Tax rates are analyzed using a unique tax dataset for advanced and developing economies extending over five decades We report a number of novel results there is no general negative relationship between financial globalization and corporate tax rates and revenues results vary according to country grouping with OECD countries showing a positive relationship the United States exhibits a Stackelberg type of leadership on other countries trade integration is inversely correlated with tax rates and public sentiment and ideology affect tax rates The policy implications of these findings particularly given budgetary pressures in the aftermath of the global crisis are noted Fiscal Policies and Growth in the World Economy Jacob A. A Strategic Understanding of UN Economic Sanctions Golnoosh Hakimdavar,2013-10-08 Economic Sanctions are increasingly used as a legal non military technique of combating abusers of international peace However it remains unclear how the success or failure of these sanctions is measured This book examines the seldom explored United Nations economic sanctions deliberation process and exposes systematic problems in the measurement of the success or failure of these sanctions Centering on the key concepts of peace and security the author brings the reader s attention to the discrepancies that exist in the process of decision making implementation and evaluation of UN imposed economic sanctions She engages international law and development methods to provide proof for the lack of consensus in measures of success and failure which in turn suggests that sanction implementation on a uniform domestic front are unattainable This thorough analysis concludes with suggestions for improving the sanctions process only to clear the path for negating them as a whole and suggest alternative non coercive measures for mitigating conflict situations and threats to peace and security
