INTRODUCTION

'My name is August, by the way. I won't describe what I look like. Whatever you're thinking, it's probably worse.' (p. 3)

August Pullman is different, which is a classic theme in children's and YA literature. But Auggie has a real problem because his facial deformities make him look very different indeed. People have to look very hard to see beyond Auggie's face, and to appreciate the person he is inside.

His story of going to school for the first time, after being home-schooled for years, coincides with his elder sister Via going to high school. Both experience major emotional changes, and their family dynamics change as well.
