

THE OFFICIAL HANDBOOK FOR THE CLARKE TIN WHISTLE

The first Clarke Tin Whistle appeared in 1843, and for nearly two hundred years this wonderful little musical instrument has been made using almost exactly the same design as the original. Deceptively simple, the Clarke Tin Whistle is capable of producing sublime music, and is perfect for both children and adults. You can carry it in your pocket or bag and keep it as a musical companion wherever you go.

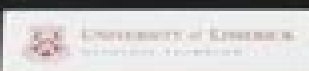

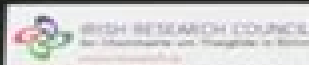

In this tutorial you will find everything you need to know about the instrument. The lessons will guide you from your first notes through to some simple tunes, and will then take you to more advanced techniques and complex melodies. The accompanying CD provides you with a clear listening guide too.

At the back of the book you will find 50 more tunes to learn and play. That should keep you going for a while!

"Ian Bancroft is the perfect advocate for the tin whistle. Like the instrument itself, he has a longevity within numerous musical landscapes spiced by a youthfulness, humour and global engagement that is evident through this wonderful work. His passion here is palpable, only tempered by a structured and patient approach that anyone new or however inordinate to the instrument can learn from. The historical detail is both absorbing and well-researched, and as a bonus the book is beautifully illustrated by another fine traditional musician, Finn Harper."

Dr. Niall Keegan, Director of Undergraduate Studies, Associate Director, The Irish World Academy of Music and Dance, University of Limerick.

Supported by:

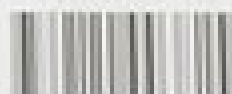

FOUNDER ROBERT CLARKE

"Ian has created an effective, clear, and readable text, accessible to the absolute beginner but containing interpretative and historical material that reflects his own deep immersion within the tradition as both player and scholar. Pleasant tone settings, illuminating period photographs and anecdotes, and useful illustrations (many based upon photographs) by Finn Harper round out the package. Highly recommended."

Dr Christopher J Smith, Professor & Chair of Musicology, Director, Vernacular Music Centre, Texas Tech University USA, and author of Celtic Backup for All Instrumentation.
