The Combined Food Board A Study In Wartime International Planning:

The Combined Food Board Eric Roll,1956 A Companion to World War II Thomas W. Zeiler, Daniel M.

DuBois,2012-12-21 A Companion to World War II brings together a series of fresh academic perspectives on World War II exploring the many cultural social and political contexts of the war Essay topics range from American anti Semitism to the experiences of French African soldiers providing nearly 60 new contributions to the genre arranged across two comprehensive volumes A collection of original historiographic essays that include cutting edge research Analyzes the roles of neutral nations during the war Examines the war from the bottom up through the experiences of different social classes Covers the causes key battles and consequences of the war War, Agriculture, and Food Paul Brassley, Yves Segers, Leen van Molle,2012 Between the 1930s and the 1950s rural life in Europe underwent profound changes partly as a result of the Second World War and partly as a result of changes which had been in progress over many years This book examines a range of European countries from Scandinavia to Spain and Ireland to Hungary during this crucial period and identifies the common pressures to which they all responded and the features that were unique to individual countries In particular it examines the processes of agricultural development over western Europe as a whole the impact of the war on international trading patterns the relationships between states and farmers and the changing identities of rural populations It presents a bold attempt to write rural history on a European scale and will be of interest not only to historians and historical geographers but also to those interested in the historical background to the Common Agricultural Policy of the European Union to which the changes discussed here provided a dramatic prologue Food for War Alan F. Wilt,2001-09-20 Food for War is a ground breaking study of Britain s food and agricultural preparations in the 1930s as the nation once again made ready for war Historians writing about 1930s Britain have usually focused on the Depression appeasement or political military and industrial concerns None have dealt adequately with another significant topic food and agriculture as the nation moved albeit reluctantly from peace to war In this new account Alan F Wilt makes right this omission by examining in depth the relationship between food agriculture and the nation s preparations for war He reveals how food and agriculture became closely linked to rearmament as early as 1936 that the government s preparations in this sector as contrasted with other areas of the economy were relatively well developed when war broke out in 1936 and that rural and farm interests well understood the effect that war would have on their way of life He argues that food and agriculture need to be integrated into the more general historical discourse for what happened in Britain in the 1930s not only set the stage for World War II but also contributed to a more robust agriculture in the decades that followed National Planning In The United States David E. Wilson,2019-03-13 This annotated bibliography of more than 2 000 entries current through 1977 sheds light on the national planning idea as a substantive issue in past present and future U S public policy presents a bibliographic structure that suggests new emphases relationships and interdisciplinary approaches and makes more easily accessible to students a

Food Policy Tim Lang, David Barling, Martin Caraher, 2009-03-19 For over half a century food policy has mapped a path for progress based upon a belief that the right mix of investment scientific input and human skills could unleash a surge in productive capacity which would resolve humanity's food related health and welfare problems It assumed that more food would yield greater health and happiness by driving down prices increasing availability and feeding more mouths In the 21st century this policy mix is quietly becoming unstuck In a world marred by obesity alongside malnutrition climate change alongside fuel and energy crises water stress alongside more mouths to feed and social inequalities alongside unprecedented accumulation of wealth the old rubric of food policy needs re evaluation This book explores the enormity of what the new policy mix must address taking the approach that food policy must be inextricably linked with public health environmental damage and social inequalities to be effective Written by three authors with differing backgrounds one in political science another in environmental health and health promotion and the third in social psychology this book reflects the myriad of perspectives essential to a comprehensive view of modern food policy It attempts to make sense of what is meant by food policy explores whether the term has any currency in current policy discourse assesses whether current policies help or hinder what happens judges whether consensus can triumph in the face of competing bids for understanding looks at all levels of governance across the range of actors in the food system from companies and the state to civil society and science considers what direction food policies are taking not just in the UK but internationally assesses who and what gains or loses in the making of these food policies and identifies a modern framework for judging how good or limited processes of policy making are This book provides a major comprehensive review of current and past food policy thinking and proposing the need for what the authors call an ecological public health approach to food policy Nothing less will be fit for the 21st century
