McDonald,2011-11-01 Making Vancouver explores social relationships in Vancouver from 1863 to 1913 It considers how urbanization structured social boundaries among Burrard Inlet s increasingly large population and is premised on the belief that in studying social boundaries historians must abandon single category forms of analysis and build into their research strategies the capacity to explore complexity Robert McDonald thus traces the relationship between the two forms of identify class and status for the whole of Vancouver society The book starts with the years when settlement on Burrard Inlet centred around two lumber mills explores periods of elite dominance of city institutions and then of growing social and political conflict following the arrival of the railway examines the heightening of class tensions at the turn of the century charts economic growth during the boom years before the war and concludes with three chapters on the tripartite status hierarchy that emerged in concert with that of a class dichotomy It reveals a western city that was neither egalitarian nor closed to opportunity Vancouver up to the pre war crash of 1913 was open and dynamic The rapidity of growth easy access to resources narrow industrial base and influence of ethnicity and race softened the thrust towards class division inherent in capitalism Far more powerful in directing social relations was the quest for status creating a social structure that was no less hierarchical than that predicted by class theory but much more fluid The social boundary that separated the working class from others is revealed as a division that for much of the pre war boom period divided Vancouver society more fundamentally than the boundary separating labour from capital      Social Stratification Roxanne Connelly,Vernon Gayle,2016-04-01 Research into social stratification and social divisions has always been a central component of sociological study This volume brings together a range of thematically organised case studies comprising empirical and methodological analyses addressing the challenges of studying trends and processes in social stratification This collection has four themes The first concerns the measurement of social stratification since the problem of relating concepts measurements and operationalizations continues to cause difficulties for sociological analysis This book clarifies the appropriate deployment of existing measurement options and presents new empirical strategies of measurement and interpretation The conception of the life course and individual social biography is very popular in modern sociology The second theme of this volume exploits the contemporary expansion of micro level longitudinal data and the analytical approaches available to researchers to exploit such records It comprises chapters which exemplify innovative empirical analysis of life course processes in a longitudinal context thus offering an advance on previous sociological accounts concerned with longitudinal trends and processes The third theme of the book concerns the interrelationship between contemporary demographic institutional and socioeconomic transformations and structures of social inequality Although the role of wider social changes is rarely neglected in sociological reviews such changes continue to raise analytical challenges for any assessment of empirical differences and trends The fourth theme of the book discusses selected features of policy and political responses to social stratification This volume will be of interest to students academics and policy experts working in the field of social stratification      The Educational Hopes and Ambitions of Left-Behind Children in Rural China Yang Hong,2021-10-15 This monograph highlights the educational experiences of rural children who are left behind by their migrant worker parents in China analyzing how this situation impacts on their aspirations and self identity Via an ethnographic and qualitative case study of a rural school in southwest China the author presents the real lives of these disadvantaged children along with their challenges and needs and provides an in depth understanding of how being left behind impacts on their future aspirations Building on the sociological theories of Pierre Bourdieu the author makes an original contribution by combining seemingly incompatible disciplinary perspectives such as cultural capital from sociology rational action from behavioral economics and self efficacy from psychology Hence the book endeavors to transfer these Western theories to an Eastern context and demonstrates cultural nuances that are not always captured when applied in the West The book will attract academic scholars and postgraduate students in the area of socially disadvantaged children and young people as well as those who are working on youth studies and rural education
