Social Use Of Information:

Communication in Social Work Joyce Lishman, 2020-07-23 Effective communication is a vital part of the social worker's job. This welcome new edition of a classic text provides students and practitioners with essential advice and guidance about communicating and interacting in a range of social work settings. Based on the author's extensive personal and teaching experience, the text offers a succinct introduction to a variety of communication techniques including symbolic non-verbal, verbal, written, and electronic forms of communication. Importantly, it discusses the perspectives of service users and explores their experiences and interpretations of how a social worker looks, acts, and speaks, thus giving a real insight into the implicit messages being conveyed. New to this edition are 'Putting it into Practice' activities and further reading suggestions designed to support learning and understanding and to enable readers to reflect critically for practice. Written in an appealing narrative style that cannot fail to draw the reader in, Communication in Social Work is an engaging and comprehensive book suitable both for social work and social care students and for newly qualified practitioners wanting to refresh their thinking and skills.

Social Capital and Information Technology Marleen Huysman, Volker Wulf, 2004 A multidisciplinary examination of the interplay between social capital (the value derived from social ties) and information technology. The concept of social capital or the value that can be derived from social ties created by goodwill, mutual support, shared language, common beliefs, and a sense of mutual obligation has been applied to a number of fields from sociology to management. It is only lately, however, that researchers in information technology and knowledge management have begun to explore the idea of social capital in relation to their fields. This collection of thirteen essays by computer scientists, sociologists, communication specialists, economists, and others presents a multidisciplinary look at this particular intersection of information technology and social science and the need to adopt a sociotechnical perspective. For the most part, the contributors take a positive view of the interplay of social capital, knowledge sharing, and community building. Some essays look at specific instances including the on-line and face-to-face relationships of a community of athletes, the building of social capital among Iranian NGOs, and the Internet-based communities created by the open source movement, while others discuss more general ideas of civic and personal communities. The last four essays examine computer applications that augment social capital, including topic and member-centered communications spaces such as the Expert Finder and the Loops system, and virtual repositories of knowledge such as the Answer Garden and Pearls of Wisdom.

Social Experimentation and Public Policymaking David H. Greenberg, Donna Links, Marvin Mandell, 2003 Social experimentation randomly assigns individuals or groups to coverage by the policy of interest or a control group, and then the groups are compared in terms of outcome. Greenberg, economics, U of Maryland; Links, mathematics/science and engineering, Community College of Baltimore County; and Mandell, policy sciences, U of Maryland, seek to assess whether the substantial investment in social experimentation in the United States has resulted in significant public policy changes. After explaining the general concepts behind social experimentation, they analyze five case studies and determine that they are not of decisive importance in state policy making but they often serve useful purposes of policy formation Annotation c 2003 Book News Inc Portland OR booknews com
