Flaherty, Hamdesa Tusso, 2016-11-21 The profession of peacemaking has been practiced by indigenous communities around the world for many centuries however the ethnocentric world view of the West which dominated the world of ideas for the last five centuries dismissed indigenous forms of peacemaking as irrelevant and backward tribal rituals Neither did indigenous forms of peacemaking fit the conception of modernization and development of the new ruling elites who inherited the postcolonial state The new profession of Alternative Dispute Resolution ADR which emerged in the West as a new profession during the 1970s neglected the tradition and practice of indigenous forms of peacemaking The scant literature which has appeared on this critical subject tends to focus on the ritual aspect of the indigenous practices of peacemaking The goal of this book is to fill this lacuna in scholarship More specifically this work focuses on the process of peacemaking exploring the major steps of process of peacemaking which the peacemakers follow in dislodging antagonists from the stage of hostile confrontation to peaceful resolution of disputes and eventual reconciliation The book commences with a critique of ADR for neglecting indigenous processes of peacemaking and then utilizes case studies from different communities around the world to focus on the following major themes the basic structure of peacemaking process change and continuity in the traditions of peacemaking the role of indigenous women in peacemaking the nature of the tools peacemakers deploy common features found in indigenous processes of peacemaking and the overarching goals of peacemaking activities in indigenous communities Modern Social Work Theory, Fourth Edition Malcolm Payne, 2014-06 This masterly text is a classic in its field and will be a reliable companion throughout the course of your studies and your career as a social work practitioner In this substantially reworked and updated fourth edition of his best selling text Malcolm Payne presents clear and concise evaluations of the pros and cons of major theories that inform social work practice and comparisons between them Modern Social Work Theory is now more accessible and comprehensive than ever offering the most complete coverage of social work theory from classic perspectives to the very latest ideas including a new chapter dedicated to strengths narrative and solutions approaches a host of brand new case examples showing how theories can be applied to everyday practice new analysis of the ethical dimensions of different social work theories and what common values they share Pause and Reflect questions to encourage you to draw on your own experience and develop your thinking and updated Example text sections

Tackling Domestic Violence: Theories, Policies And Practice Harne, Lynne, Radford, Jill, 2008-07-01 This accessible text takes a multi disciplinary approach to exploring issues surrounding domestic violence It draws on contemporary research findings policy developments innovative practice and case studies to explore new directions in professional and voluntary sector responses to domestic violence Challenging Global Inequality Alastair Greig, David Hulme, Mark Turner, 2007-01-16 This major introductory text written by 3 leading names in the field provides an accessible overview of the challenges faced in overcoming global poverty and inequality in the 21st century Through an in depth assessment of development theory and practice the authors set out to advance two key arguments the first being the importance of historically contextualizing contemporary developmental problems in order to assess policy proposals and the second that inequality matters and how this notion has continually remained a central feature of development debates from colonial times to present day. Ideal for undergraduate students taking development modules as part of political science and international relations degrees, this engaging text proves to be essential reading when exploring the impacts of development on today's international political economy. With each chapter covering inequalities from all different angles, the authors clearly outline the impact of models such as globalization and neoliberalism, as well as offering alternative views on the challenges posed by the UN's Millennium Development Goals. Also available is a companion website with extra features to accompany the text. Aminul Faraizi, Taskinur Rahman, Jim McAllister, 2014-04-04. Using a case study of Bangladesh and based on a long-term participatory observation method, this book investigates claims of the success of microcredit, as well as the critiques of it, in the context of women's empowerment. It confronts the distinction between women's increasing wealth as a consequence of the success of microcredit programmes and their apparent non-commensurate empowerment, looking at two organisations: the Grameen Bank and the Bangladesh Rural Advancement Committee, as they operate in two localities in rural Bangladesh in order to discover how enrichment and empowerment are often confused. The book goes on to establish that the well-publicised success stories of the microcredit programme are blown out of proportion and that the dynamics of collective responsibility for repayment of loans by a group of women borrowers, usually seen to be a tool for the success of microcredit, is in fact no less repressive than traditional debt collectors. This book makes a contribution to development debates, challenging adherents to more closely specify those conditions under which microcredit does indeed have validity, as well as providing insights relevant to South Asian Studies and Development Studies. Phases of Rural Development in Malaysia: Shifting Towards Human Resource Development and Well-being (UUM Press) Kalthum Hassan, Chamhuri Siwar, 2021-11-28. The rural development approach should be flexible and dynamic to correspond with the transformation of the rural economy and society. Therefore, the phases of rural development in Malaysia illustrate the transformation of rural development approaches in Malaysia and how these approaches have changed the overall rural landscape. Different from other books on rural development, this book presents discussion and analysis on rural development approaches since after independence until during the COVID-19 pandemic. The content of the book is a mixture of primary and secondary information gathered from literature reviews, interviews, and on-site observation. It provides a diverse and rich discussion on various aspects of rural development approaches. The early phase of development approach, which was at macro level, targeting the mass of rural poverty, since the poverty incidence was high. The goal of rural development was two-pronged: to develop the economy, infrastructure, and facilities of the rural areas and to alleviate poverty. As the incidence of poverty has reduced remarkably, the development approach has separated from the poverty alleviation programmes. Development initiatives were more to provide basic urban infrastructure and facilities to develop human resources through skill training.

and improve level of education of the rural residents In addition rural development provides employment opportunities through decentralization of industrial sector to rural areas and fosters entrepreneurship activities Meanwhile the poverty alleviation programmes are tackled at micro level that is more towards individual or a household level The outbreak of COVID 19 pandemic alters the approach of rural development focusing on providing facilities services and assistance to preserve the well being of rural community especially the low income group

Hulme, 2013-11-05 As Western aid budgets are slashed and government involvement with aid programmes reduced NGOs in the voluntary sector are finding themselves taking an ever increasing share of development work overseas As they do so they are forced to grow and to assume new responsibilities taking more important and wide ranging decisions in many cases without having had the chance to step back and review the options before them and the best ways of maximizing the impact they make This collection of essays explores the strategies available to NGOs to enhance their development work reviewing the ways that options can be understood appropriate programmes and likely problems Science and Technology in a Developing World T. Shinn, J. Spaapen, V.V. Krishna, 2013-04-17 block possible Soviet expansion by mobilizing European democracies the policy soon extended to some developing countries in Asia and Latin America In response the USSR gradually initiated development programs for newly independent nations in Asia and Africa In this context super power rivalry operated in the South to i expand spheres of influence and control ii guard Southern nations from the influence and incursions launched by the opposed camp iii stimulate indigenous development With few exceptions Southern nations provided little input to the definition and execution of North South dynamics during this period In the case of Africa and to some extent Asia the acquisition of independence was so recent and often sudden that there was little time to reflect on the kind of policies and measures needed to build balanced relations with the former mother country In Latin America the Monroe Doctrine had long insured that the region was a virtual captive of the US Aid for development was contingent on conformity to US political and economic interests The cognitive component of South North dealings strongly reflected the two above mentioned dispositions The relative lack of political experience in the South and the dearth of an organized and sizable intellectual academic community meant that there were few cognitive and human resources for undertaking careful study and analysis of the conditions and needs of development from a Southern perspective influential exceptions existed though such as Raul Prebisch in Latin America or Ghandi in India
