Treating Child-Abusive Families Jeffrey A. Kelly, 2013-11-21 During the past ten years the problem of child abuse has been the subject of increased attention both in the professional community and among the general public The reasons for this widespread recognition are clear First professionals of many disciplines deal with child abusive families and do so in a variety of ways Physicians hospital staff and teachers are often the first to assess a child as the victim of abuse social workers and child protective personnel investigate cases of suspected abuse court and legal authorities make determinations concerning the needs of an abused child and mental health professionals including psychologists social workers and family counselors often have responsibility for treating abusive families Few clinical problems have received this kind of widespread interdisciplinary recognition and given the nature and seriousness of child abusive behavior few problems receive such intensive attention within each profession's literature A second factor responsible for increased study of child abuse is the fact that violence directed toward children is probably the most extreme form of family dysfunction seen by counselors therapists and other practitioners While other types of child management and anger control problems occur far more frequently the consequences of child abusive behavior are much more serious than the consequences of other problems seen in child or family clinics It has been estimated that as many as 550 000 children are the targets of parental abuse in the country each year Helfer Kemper 1976

Handbook of Psychological Approaches with Violent Offenders Vincent B. Van Hasselt, Michel Hersen, 2013-11-11 The past quarter century has witnessed a dramatic upsurge of violent crime in the United States and abroad In this country the rise in violent criminal activity has been consistently documented in such published accounts as the Uniform Crime Reports and the Statistical Handbook on Violence in America published by the FBI and the Violence Research Group respectively Further social scientists particularly those working in the fields of sociology and psychology have provided a convergence of findings attesting to the magnitude of one of today's most significant social problems domestic violence e g spouse child and elder abuse Such efforts have served as the impetus for heightened clinical and investigative activity in the area of violent behavior Indeed a wide range of mental health experts such as psychologists psychiatrists social workers counselors and rehabilitation specialists have endeavored to focus on strategies and issues in research and treatment for violent individuals and their victims The purpose of this book is to provide a comprehensive and timely examination of current psychological approaches with violent criminal offenders Despite the fact that we continue to have much to learn about perpetrators of violent acts in recent an increasingly large body of empirical data have been adduced about this year's issue However these data generally have appeared in disparate journals and books That being the case it is our belief that such a handbook now is warranted
