Something to Believe In Rupesh Shah, David Murphy, Malcolm McIntosh, 2017-09-29 In a world where trust in politicians corporations and the processes that determine our lives continues to dwindle this innovative book brings together research case studies and stories that begin to answer a central question for society How we can create organisations institutions groups and societies that can nurture trusting relationships with one another and among individuals Something to Believe In provides a fresh take on the corporate responsibility debate based as it is on the work of key global thinkers on corporate social responsibility along with a raft of work developed from collaborations between the New Academy of Business and the United Nations Volunteers UK Department for International Development and TERI Europe in countries such as Brazil Nicaragua Ghana India Sri Lanka Bangladesh Lebanon Nigeria the Philippines and South Africa The focus is on business and particularly how deeper more systemic changes to current ways of understanding and undertaking business can and have been enacted in both developed countries and in nations where the Western concept of CSR means nothing The market based model of economic thinking the increasingly distrusted globalisation project which threatens to sweep all before it is challenged by many of the contributions to this book The book tells stories such as the mobilization of civil society in Ghana to bring business to account the reorientation of a business school to focus on values the life cycle of ethical chocolate the accountability of the diamond business in a war zone the need to reinvent codes of conduct for women workers in the plantations and factories of Nicaragua a Philippine initiative to economically empower former Moslem liberation fighters and the development of local governance practices in a South African eco village The book is split into four sections Through Some Looking Glasses contains short thought provoking pieces about the issues of trust belief and change from writers including Thabo Mbeki Malcolm McIntosh and a reprinted piece from E M Forster Section Two asks how it will be possible to believe in our corporations and provides new approaches from around the world on how space is being opened up to found businesses that are able to create trust Section Three examines the role of auditing in fostering trust Corporations continue to attempt to engender trust through their activities in philanthropy reporting and voluntary programmes But post Enron et al even the most highly praised corporate mission statements are tarnished Can social and environmental audits of corporate reports codes and practices assuage our doubts about boardroom democracy Section Four examines alternative forms of accountability transparency and governance from around the world and offers some different ways of thinking about the practice of creating trust in society Something to Believe In provides a host of fascinating suggestions about redefining and renewing the underlying deal between society and its organizations It will become a key text for students thinkers and practitioners in the field of corporate responsibility

Something to Believe In Kimberly Van Meter, 2013-01-01 Lilah Bell isn't asking for much just a normal life A future that's different from her shadowed traumatic past Maybe even a chance to start over Instead all she gets is the suffocating attention of her overprotective sisters who seem to be waiting for her to break again They don't get that helping save her family's beautiful Virgin Islands resort is definitely a challenge she can handle But what she can't handle is a serious relationship with carefree visitor Justin Cales After all wanting a man who isn't planning to stick around isn't smart Problem is falling for Justin is too easy And now life is more complicated than ever When the truth unravels they'll either be brought together in unexpected ways or torn apart for good      Something to Believe in Anders Iversen,1988 Each of the contributions differing in approach and format deal with the responses to the Spanish Civil War of a number of writers from Britain Canada and the US Donald Hannah discusses the poets of the Auden group comparing their work with the poetry of the first world war Jorn Carlsen summarises the debate on Spain in Canadian newspapers and periodicals and surveys the impact of the war on Canadian fiction and poetry Erik Arne Hansen in a multifaceted approach to Hemingway's oeuvre offers an extended analysis of For Whom the Bell Tolls And Anders Iversen contributes a critical reading of Homage to Catalonia with a view to relating Orwell's Spanish experience to his political development      Something to Believe Robbi McCoy,2010-12-01 When Lauren Keegan met Cassie Burkett on a Yangtze River cruise they immediately clicked Cruise over they kept in touch and rapidly became close friends The following year they're reunited for a visit which ends with a spontaneous kiss that surprises them both That one kiss destroys their friendship sending them back to their lives and their partners heartsick and remorseful Ten years later everything and nothing has changed While the path is now clear for them to reignite the old flame the time still seems all wrong Cassie is unable to break through the emotional walls separating her from both her estranged son and her rediscovered love while Lauren is overcome with revelations about her late partner that shatter her belief in destiny and romance Challenged by the past and besieged in the present the only thing going for them is the one thing they've denied all these years love With an unforgettable journey through China as backdrop for a story of fated love Robbi McCoy author of Waltzing at Midnight and Not Every River returns with a decade spanning romance that explores first impressions second chances and perhaps third time's the charm      Crazy Enough To Believe In Me Erica Moseley,2024-01-05 There was no way I was supposed to come back from that dark place Everyone I knew gave up on me I was an embarrassment Truth be told I was embarrassed too I was ashamed too I hated me too I too also knew that I had issues The difference is at some point I began to ponder and question everything I had ever been told In my mind my heart and deep down in my soul I begged to differ This groaning in my spirit only grew louder as I dug clawed and crawled kicked and screamed fought my way out of this god forsaken place Now they can only stare in disbelief I'd even go so far as saying some of them are in awe I'm convinced that we all have something inside of us that can fight its way out of nearly anything or any situation It simply has to be awakened though it won't be a simple task So long as we have breath in our lungs there is always a chance for us to see the tides turn
