Taxation In Modern China:

Taxation in Modern China Donald J. S. Brean, 2013-10-23 Taxation in Modern China is concerned with tax and public financial issues arising in China's economic transition. The contributors among the leading authorities on public finance, transitional economics, and policy reform in China direct attention to the largest and most comprehensive fiscal reform program in modern history. The essays collected here cover the main institutional, intergovernmental, and industrial issues and address the long-term challenges facing China as well as transitional changes. Taxation Without Representation in Contemporary Rural China Thomas P. Bernstein, Xiaobo Lü, 2003-03-27 This book provides the first in-depth English study of the tax burden problems farmers face in China. The Guangdong Model and Taxation in China Jin-A

Kang, 2025-10-01 This book explores the formation, development, and characteristics of modern China's finance, focusing especially on Guangdong province as a case study to illustrate both the macro-level trends and the micro-level reality. The chronological range of this book is mainly from the late Qing period to the early Republican Era, ending in 1937 when the full-scale Second Sino-Japanese War broke out. After the concept of modern finance was introduced to China for the first time in the late Qing period, the efforts to build modern finance continued in the Republican Era, both nationally and locally. But this process was interrupted by the outbreak of the war against Japan in 1937 and, having been derailed, did not subsequently recover due to the subsequent civil war between the Kuomintang and the Chinese Communist Party. This interrupted process of financial modernization was resumed with Reform and Opening up launched in 1978. Therefore, in order to illustrate the structural transformation and persistent characteristics of China's fiscal system, this book also includes discussions of the early Qing period and current Chinese finance. Taxation in ASEAN and China Nolan Sharkey, 2012-05-31 China and the ASEAN region have risen rapidly to a position of immense economic significance in the global economy. Academics, policy makers, and businesses are all keen to understand more about taxation in China and ASEAN, and this work seeks to address this key issue by providing a comprehensive overview of the many often-mentioned but little-understood challenges of doing business in the region. Traversing a wide range of regional issues and jurisdictions, topics covered include the role of DTAs in regional integration, the impact of social institutions on tax corruption and its causes, economic development and taxation, and the use of education in developing systems. Case studies are taken from countries such as China, Vietnam, Hong Kong, Singapore, the Philippines, Malaysia, and Indonesia. Drawing on the results of these discussions, the book also sheds light on the question of whether different taxing institutions are needed in the region. Gathering together a cross-disciplinary group of eminent scholars, this work will be of great interest to all students and scholars of Asian economics, Asian finance, and taxation in general. Taxation without Representation in Contemporary Rural China Thomas P. Bernstein, Xiaobo

Lü, 2003-03-27 The financial burden imposed upon the Chinese farmer by local taxes has become a major source of discontent in the Chinese countryside and a worrisome source of political and social instability for the Chinese government. Bernstein and L examine the forms and sources of heavy informal taxation and shed light on how peasants defend their interests by adopting strategies of collective resistance both peaceful and violent Bernstein and L also explain why the central government while often siding with the peasants has not been able to solve the burden problem by instituting a sound reliable financial system in the countryside While the regime has to some extent sought to empower farmers to defend their interests by informing them about tax rules expanding the legal system and instituting village elections for example these attempts have not yet generated enough power from below to counter powerful local official agencies

The Property Tax in China Yilin Hou,Qiang Ren,Ping Zhang,2014-11-20 This monograph offers a detailed analysis of the creation pilot implementation and possible wide adoption of the real property tax at the local level in China Starting in 2003 as China s economy gradually recovered from the Asian financial crisis that started in 1998 the real property market entered a period of rapid expansion followed immediately by rampant speculation rising housing costs and official corruption Over the last ten years the price of real property in most cities has more than tripled especially in metropolitan areas In an effort to curb this the government has instituted a number of property market controls including property tax pilot programs in Shanghai and Chongqing While this is the latest of a number of fiscal reforms it is a very important one that carries with it the ability to change the landscape of public finance intergovernmental relations and local governance in China It represents a fundamental change in the provision of public services the relationship between local governments and tax payers and the status of localities in the government structure Taking a public choice perspective the authors argue that the local property tax should be used not solely as a means of controlling housing prices but should be fully employed as a fiscal and budgetary institution that will contribute to mitigating multifarious socio economic problems resulting from economic growth rapid urbanization and widening income disparity As this program is the first of its kind so this book is the first detailed study of property tax in China as such it will appeal to researchers of public finance and public policy It will also be of great interest to policymakers in China and in other countries that are considering adopting or reforming their versions of the local property tax It fills the gap in a growing body of literature about the inner workings of Chinese economics and policy
