A Critical Auto/Ethnography of Learning Spanish Phiona Stanley, 2016-11-10 The premise that intercultural contact produces intercultural competence underpins much rationalization of backpacker tourism and in country language education However if insufficiently problematized pre existing constructions of cultural otherness may hinder intercultural competence development This is nowhere truer than in contexts in which wide disparities of power wealth and privilege exist and where such positionings may go unproblematized This study contributes to theoretical understandings of how intercultural competence develops through intercultural contact situations through a detailed multiple case study of three conceptually comparable contexts in which Western backpackers study Spanish in Latin America This experience often bundled with home stay volunteer work social and tourist experiences offers a rich set of empirical data within which to understand the nature of intercultural competence and the processes through which it may be developed Models of a single context free transferable intercultural competence are rejected Instead suggestions are made as to how educators might help prepare intercultural sojourners by scaffolding their intercultural reflections and problematizing their own intersectional identities and their assumptions The study is a critical ethnography with elements of autoethnographic reflection The book therefore also contributes to development of this qualitative research methodology and provides an empirical example of its application

Women in the History of Language Learning and Teaching Sabine Doff, Giovanni Iamartino, Rachel Mairs, 2025-10-01 This volume addresses the historical neglect of women s contributions to language learning and teaching While the historiography of language education has often focused on male dominated frameworks overlooking the pivotal roles women have played the case studies in this book highlight female pioneers in language education across various cultural and linguistic traditions from the Middle Ages to the twentieth century Covering a wide range of languages including Greek Arabic French and English and exploring the gendered dimensions of language education where social class and gender influence both the languages taught and the methods employed the book reveals women s agency in shaping language education and the systematic undervaluing of their contributions In doing so it calls for a broader more inclusive historiography that recognises women s significant impact on the field often in non institutional and domestic contexts and a reconsideration of the history of language education to acknowledge the contributions of women globally
