It is based on a selection of papers presented at their third bi annual conference and has been updated by each contributor to include their current thoughts and opinions. Containing nineteen articles each an in depth examination of the topic it is divided into four sections: conceptual frames for teacher thought and action; methods and approaches to the study of teacher thought and action; teacher judgment and evaluation of students; teacher thinking and teacher education. Broad in theme, international in scope and detailed, this book is essential and enlightening reading for anyone with a serious interest in the ongoing development of educational thought.

Educational Change in International Early Childhood Contexts Linda R. Kroll, Daniel R. Meier, 2014-12-05. Co-published with the Association for Childhood Education International (ACEI). Educational Change in International Early Childhood Contexts: Crossing Borders of Reflection examines the role of teacher reflection in a variety of educational contexts worldwide. Using a case study approach that integrates research, theory, policy and practice, international contributors show how in some settings local traditions and values are honored while in others international educational ideas and programs become modified to suit local needs. Cases from Japan, China, Palestine, South Africa, Kenya, Finland, Italy and New Zealand are discussed as well as models from the United States. Through its thorough investigation into teacher reflection practices throughout the world, Educational Change in International Early Childhood Contexts: Crossing Borders of Reflection focuses on the transformative value of these practices to promote change in early childhood education. Framing commentary from Linda R. Kroll and Daniel R. Meier provides context and places the case studies in conversation with one another, allowing for productive international comparisons in this dynamic collection.

Action Research for Inclusive Education Felicity Armstrong, Diana Tsokova, 2019-04-24. Exploring practitioner research and the possibilities it creates for increasing student participation and developing inclusive practices in educational contexts, this insightful text presents a range of original and innovative approaches to Action Research and highlights the critical relationship between educational theory, research and practice in transformative action. Focussing on social constructivist approaches to teaching and learning, Action Research for Inclusive Education offers first hand insights from researcher-practitioners from international settings including Denmark, Germany, Ireland, Saudi Arabia, Granada, Greece, Singapore and England. Chapters explore diverse participatory and collaborative research practices which draw on the strengths and contributions of teachers and support staff, pupils and families to foster inclusive practices across the school community and strengthen the participation and independence of all students. Topics considered include collaboration in Participatory Action Research, friendships and the development of students' social skills, student voice and the role of pupils as co-researchers and peer mentors. Making an important contribution to debates on inclusive education and the role of practitioners and students in bringing about change, this text will be key reading for students, teachers and educational researchers.

International Teacher Education Cheryl J. Craig, Lily Orland-Barak, 2014-12-02. The book fills a gaping hole in the teacher education literature. Nowhere is there a volume that globally surveys teacher education pedagogies and invites international scholars to describe the most productive ones in their home countries

The Professional Knowledge Base of Science Teaching

Deborah Corrigan, Justin Dillon, Richard Gunstone, 2011-03-01 Over the past twenty years much has been written about the knowledge bases thought necessary to teach science. Shulman has outlined seven knowledge domains needed for teaching and others such as Tamir have proposed somewhat similar domains of knowledge specifically for science teachers. Aspects of this knowledge have changed because of shifts in curriculum thinking and the current trends in science education have seen a sharp increase in the significance of the knowledge bases. The development of a standards based approach to the quality of science teaching has become common in the Western world and phrases such as evidence based practice have been tossed around in the attempt to measure such quality. The Professional Knowledge Base of Science Teaching explores the knowledge bases considered necessary for science teaching. It brings together a number of researchers who have worked with science teachers and they address what constitutes evidence of high quality science teaching on what basis such evidence can be judged and how such evidence reflects the knowledge basis of the modern day professional science teacher. This is the second book produced from the Monash University King's College London International Centre for the Study of Science and Mathematics Curriculum. The first book presented a big picture of what science education might be like if values once again become central while this book explores what classroom practices may look like based on such a big picture.

Action Research For Educational Change Elliot, John, 1991-04-01 This book is concerned with action research as a form of teacher professional development. In it John Elliot traces the historical emergence and current significance of action research in schools. He examines action research as a cultural innovation with transformative possibilities for both the professional culture of teachers and teacher educators in academia and explores how action research can be a form of creative resistance to the technical rationality underpinning government policy. He explains the role of action research in the specific contexts of the national curriculum, teacher appraisal and competence based teacher training.
