The Citizen Investor Hc 2004:

Investing in Children Christine Piper, 2013-05-13 This book brings together insights from a range of disciplines including law sociology criminology and history to identify and explain the complex and inter related factors which help or hinder the state to invest in children and young people The first part of the book examines the intangibles the ideologies social constructions and moral precepts which obstruct or encourage the passage and full implementation of legislation policy and practice which hopes to improve the lives and prospects of children and young people Notions of family and parental responsibility assumptions about what children and young people are and the extent to which they should be held accountable and ideas around state investment against future risks are the key factors considered The second part of the book focuses on the difficulties in practice of implementing policies aimed at investing in children s lives and futures It reviews the role of science in the identification of risk factors related to poor outcomes for children and in the selection of target groups or areas for risk based intervention to provide early support and preventative programmes for children and their families It also assesses whether and how law does or could help to deliver an appropriate investment of time and money in children with a focus on the existence and effectiveness of a rights based approach The final chapters examine the results of research so far undertaken done on selected programmes in the Every Child Matters social inclusion and Youth Justice Board policy agendas and they indentify promising developments However they also draw attention to the alternative agendas around children and young people which are competing for government money and the public s support and warn that there are dangers in a child focused policy whose justification relies so heavily on future cost savings stemming from the production of healthier more employable and law abiding adults

More Complaints Please! - HC 229 Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Public Administration Select Committee, Bernard Jenkin, 2014-04-14 How complaints are handled determines the quality of the relationship between consumers and public services The best performing organisations welcome complaints as a way of engaging consumers A failure to recognise the importance of complaints leads to insufficient redress for the individual limits the impact that complaints have in improving services and alienates the public In some parts of public services there are encouraging signs of increased attention to good complaints handling However Government as a whole cannot be said to be complying with best practice in complaints handling or adapting to the needs and expectations of today s citizen Success depends on the right leadership The Committee recommend that there should be a minister for government policy on complaints handling the primary objective of the Cabinet Office review of complaints handling in Government should be to change attitudes and behaviour in public administration at all levels in respect of complaints handling in respect of complaints from MPs handled by ministers replies must be accurate clear and helpful and with no sharing of confidential information or delegation of responsibility for responding the Government should create a single point of contact for citizens to make complaints about government departments and agencies and the Government should provide leadership to those responsible for various parts of administrative justice to ensure that there is a clear and consistent approach to sharing learning and best practice
