The City in the Ancient World Mason Hammond, 1972 The City in the Ancient World Mason Hammond, 1972 The emergence of cities in the different regions of the ancient world presents two problems First in areas of common culture or at least of cultural contact did the cities evolve independently as phenomena of social political and economic growth or did they emanate from a common center of origin Second how did the Greco Roman city state originate In considering these questions Mason Hammond has limited the ancient world to the Middle and Near East the Indus Valley and the Mediterranean region He takes geographical and economic factors into account as he treats the cities historically by areas from their first development in Sumer around 3200 BC to the end of the ancient world in the middle of the sixth century AD Mr Hammond concludes that the city's evolution was a phenomenon of local social development but was also influenced by older cultures The city state he shows was a creation of the Greek genius It was diffused throughout the Greco Roman world and withered with the decline of ancient culture in the early Middle Ages The author provides brief geographical descriptions of the areas he covers Thirteen maps give the locations of places referred to in the text Where ancient and modern names differ markedly both are given in the text and in an index of the places shown on the maps An extensive chronological survey and a general index document the text

The City Lament Tamar M. Boyadjian, 2018-12-15 Poetic elegies for lost or fallen cities are seemingly as old as cities themselves. In the Judeo-Christian tradition, this genre finds its purest expression in the book of Lamentations, which mourns the destruction of Jerusalem. In Arabic, this genre is known as the ritha al mudun. In The City Lament, Tamar M. Boyadjian traces the trajectory of the genre across the Mediterranean world during the period commonly referred to as the early Crusades, 1095-1191, focusing on elegies and other expressions of loss that address the spiritual and strategic objective of those wars Jerusalem Through readings of city laments in English French Latin Arabic and Armenian literary traditions Boyadjian challenges hegemonic and entrenched approaches to the study of medieval literature and the Crusades The City Lament exposes significant literary intersections between Latin Christendom the Islamic caliphates of the Middle East and the Armenian kingdom of Cilicia arguing for shared poetic and rhetorical modes Reframing our understanding of literary sources produced across the medieval Mediterranean from an antagonistic orientalist model to an analogous one Boyadjian demonstrates how lamentations about the loss of Jerusalem whether to Muslim or Christian forces reveal fascinating parallels and rich cross cultural exchanges
