The Coast Watchers:

The Coastwatchers Eric A. Feldt, 1959 The Coastwatchers: Operation Ferdinand and the Fight for the South Pacific
Eric A. Feldt, 2019-08-17 The Coastwatchers is the fascinating story of the unsung heroic civilian spotters of World War 2 who roamed the coastlines of their home islands and reported back enemy sightings to Allied Intelligence Author Eric Feldt led Operation Ferdinand part of the build up to the Normandy landings in which the Coastwatchers by this time on the US Navy's payroll played a critical role His intimate knowledge of Ferdinand and his familiarity with the Coastwatchers of the Pacific islands provides a unique perspective on this little known but important chapter of military history The Coast Watchers
Eric Feldt, 1981 The story of the Island Coast Watching Service in the islands north and northeast of Australia Fire Over the Islands
Dick Crofton Horton, 1970 Guadalcanal was almost an unknown name in 1937 when young Dick Horton was posted to the Solomons In 1942 he was swept into the arena where the United States and the Australian and New Zealand allies fought it out with the armed forces of Japan After a short period of evacuation to Australia where he eventually succeeded in fretting himself clear of the permanent civilian status imposed on him by Officialdom his knowledge of the Solomons earned him a place with the 1st Raider Battalion of the US Marine Corps Later he was commissioned as Lieutenant RANVR in the Coastwatching service of the Royal Australian Navy but still maintained his close liaison with the US Marines This book tells his story and that of his companion Coast Watchers in those dangerous days enlisting the devoted aid of the islanders reporting Japanese sea air and land activities helping Allied airmen to safety and occasionally though this was not their primary function harrying and harassing the Japanese forces in the Solomons A particularly interesting feature of the book is the inside story of the rescue of Lieutenant John F Kennedy and the crew of PT 109 by Reg Evans and his islander Coast Watchers but this is only one of scores of incidents that grip the reader's attention Mr Horton's description of his landing on Tulagi with the 1st Raider Battalion for example is a memorable study in suspense In his earlier book The Happy Isles the author drew an idyllic picture of island life before the war In this new book it is fascinating to see how an apparently primitive people adapted themselves to survival in the war raging around and above them and with what outstanding courage cunning and devotion they served the Allied cause Jacket flap The Coast Watchers Patrick Lindsay, 2010 After Pearl Harbor Japan swept unchecked through the Pacific But a tiny band of brave men stayed behind the enemy lines Aided by loyal islanders they watched and they warned They were the Coast Watchers They saved countless lives including that of future US President John F Kennedy and they changed the course of the Pacific War They knew capture meant certain execution but while the Japanese hunted them they moved and hid in the jungle taking their cumbersome telereadios with them equipment that took more than a dozen men to transport They warned of Japanese air strikes reported on the movements of their shipping and troops and saved scores of downed airmen Their reports gave vital warning time to the Allies and allowed them to take a decisive toll on the enemy The famed American admiral William Bull Halsey summed it up strategic importance of Britain's imperial status. Men and women not only from Australia, New Zealand and India but from many parts of Africa and the Middle East all played their part.
