Newell, Peter C.M. Molenaar, 2014-03-05 There has been an increasing interest in the application of dynamical systems to the study of development over the last decade The explosion of the dynamical systems framework in the physical and biological sciences has opened the door to a new Zeitgeist for studying development This appeal to dynamical systems by developmentalists is natural given the intuitive links between the established fundamental problems of development and the conceptual and operational scope of nonlinear dynamical systems This promise of a new approach and framework within which to study development has led to some progress in recent years but also a growing appreciation of the difficulty of both fully examining the new metaphor and realizing its potential Divided into 4 parts this book is a result of a recent conference on dynamical systems and development held at Pennsylvania State University The first 3 parts focus on the content domains of development that have given most theoretical and empirical attention to the potential applications of dynamical systems physical growth and movement cognition and communication These parts show that a range of nonlinear models have been applied to a host of developmental phenomena Part 4 highlights two particular methodological issues that hold important implications for the modeling of developmental phenomena with dynamical systems techniques
