The Columbia Sustaining A Modern Resource:

Lifelines Tim Palmer, 2004 Lifelines chronicles the value of rivers documents the modern day problems affecting them and reports on key solutions for better stewardship On the River With Lewis and Clark Verne Huser, 2004 On their remarkable journey across the North American continent Meriwether Lewis and William Clark's Corps of Discovery traveled almost ten thousand miles about nine thousand of them on rivers With an expert's eye Verne Huser tells us what it was like to mount and carry out such an expedition 52 photographs 4 line drawings map The Columbia, 1997 In The Columbia author and photographer Tim Palmer celebrates the beauty and natural resources of this grand region and shows why this watershed is so important to everyone who lives in or cares about the Northwest and the Northern Rockies Focusing on the basin not as a collection of isolated parts but as an interconnected natural system the text provides a detailed picture of what is wrong and what needs to be changed if this remarkable place is to survive Until recently powerful industries and other commercial interests have been the predominant forces guiding the region's destiny often to self-serving ends and with disastrous results for the environment In an area so large and complex problems can seem overwhelming and the search for resolutions futile Palmer offers hope focusing on three critical areas of concern land development salmon and forests he defines the issues and demonstrates that responsible politics can redirect our society's course toward a sustainable future
