Historicising the Women's Liberation Movement in the Western World Laurel Forster, Sue Bruley, 2019-07-09 The Women's Liberation Movement WLM of the late 1960s 1970s and 1980s emerged out of a particular set of economic and social circumstances in which women were unequally treated in the home the workplace and in culture and wider society As part of the WLM women collected together in disparate groups and contexts to express their dissatisfaction with their role and position in society making their concerns apparent through consciousness raising and activism This important time in women's history is revisited in this collection which looks afresh at the diversity of the movement and the ways in which feminism of the time might be reconsidered and historicised The contributions here cover a range of important issues including feminist art local activism class distinction racial politics perceptions of motherhood girls education feminist print cultures the recovery of feminist histories and feminist heritage and they span personal and political concerns in Britain Canada and the United States Each contributor considers the impact of the WLM in a different context reflecting the variety of issues faced by women and helping us to understand the problems of the second wave This book broadens our understanding of the impact and the implication of the WLM explores the dynamism of women's activism and radicalism and acknowledges the significance of this movement to ongoing contemporary feminisms The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of Women's History Review

Sisterhood and After Margaretta Jolly, 2019-08-27 This ground breaking history of the UK Women's Liberation Movement shows why and how feminism's second wave mobilized to demand not just equality but social and gender transformation Oral history testimonies power the work tracing the arc of a feminist life from 1950s girlhoods to late life activism today Peppered with personal stories the book casts new light on feminist critiques of society and on the lives of prominent and grassroots activists Margaretta Jolly uses oral history as creative method making significant use of Sisterhood and After The Women's Liberation Oral History Project to animate still unresolved controversies of race class sexuality disability and feminist identity Women activists vividly recall a divisive education system the unevenness of sexual liberation and the challenges of Thatcherism Northern Ireland's Troubles and the policing of minority ethnic communities They illuminate key campaigns in these wider contexts and talk of the organizational and collaborative skills they struggled to acquire as they moved into local government NGOs and even the business sector Jolly provides fresh insight into iconic actions including the Miss World Protest the fight to protect abortion rights and the peace protest at Greenham Common Her accounts of workplace struggles from Ford and Grunwick to Women Against Pit Closures and Women and Manual Trades show how socialist ideals permeated feminism She explores men's violence and today's demands for trans liberation as areas of continuing feminist concern Jolly offers a refreshingly jargon free exploration of key debates and theoretical trends alongside an appreciation of the joyfully personal aspects of feminism from families homes shopping and music to relationships health aging death and faith She concludes by urging readers to enter the archives of feminist memory to help map their own political futures Her work will appeal to general readers scholars and practitioners alike

Feminist Transformations and Domestic Violence Activism in Divided Berlin, 1968-2002 Jane Freeland, 2024-07-19 This is the first in depth historical study of feminist activism against domestic violence in divided Berlin between 1968 and 2002 Starting in the 1970s feminists in West and then East Berlin campaigned against domestic violence as a key issue of women's inequality They exposed the harmful gender norms that left women unprotected and vulnerable to abuse in the home and called for this to change Indeed domestic violence has been one of the issues most effectively addressed by the women's movement in Germany Since the first shelter opened in West Berlin in 1976 women's shelters have spread throughout the country and today up to 45 000 women a year turn to emergency housing in Germany with many more accessing helplines and crisis centres Situating domestic violence activism within a broader history of feminism in post war Germany Feminist Transformations traces the evolution of this movement both across political division and reunification and from grassroots campaign to established professionalised social service In doing so it brings the histories of feminism in East and West Berlin together for the first time and explores how feminism successfully changed women's rights in Germany But it also asks what popular and political support for domestic violence activism has meant for feminism and the advancement of women's rights more broadly Examining the trajectory of feminism in Germany Jane Freeland reveals the limitations of gender equality as advancements in women's rights were often built on the reassertion of patriarchal gender roles discourse But it should never be forgotten that other cultures have their own word to say and that alternative values ways of thinking and practices exist and attempt should always be made to bring these out and to highlight them if they could possibly contribute to the satisfactory solution of a global problem This book brings together various papers on bioethical issues and problems written at different times some previously published each of which attempts to bring out some African elements perspective or concern The African narrative style predominates through these essays but their framing conforms more or less to the Western paradigm for presenting academic issues Practising Identities Sasha

Undoing Monogamy Angela Willey, 2016-04-28 In Undoing Monogamy Angela Willey offers a radically interdisciplinary exploration of the concept of monogamy in U.S. science and culture propelled by queer feminist desires for new modes of conceptualization and new forms of belonging. She approaches the politics and materiality of monogamy as intertwined with one another such that disciplinary ways of knowing themselves become an object of critical inquiry. Refusing to answer the naturalization of monogamy with a naturalization of nonmonogamy, Willey demands a critical reorientation toward the monogamy question in the natural sciences, social sciences, and humanities. The book examines colonial sexual science, monogamous voles, polyamory, and the work of Alison Bechdel and Audre Lorde to show how challenging the lens through which human nature is seen as monogamous or nonmonogamous forces us to reconsider our investments in coupling and in disciplinary notions of biological bodies.

Social Theory, Social Change and Social Work Nigel Parton, 2002-09-11 Social Theory, Social Change and Social Work has two interrelated themes. First, to account for and analyse current changes in social work, and secondly, to assess how far recent developments in social theory can contribute to their interpretation. Representing the work of a range of academics all involved in research and teaching in relation to social work, it considers issues of central significance to everyone interested in the theory, policy, and practice of social work.

Difference In View: Women And Modernism Gabriele Griffin, 2003-09-02 This collection of essays challenges conceptions of high modernism, its preoccupation with style at the expense of issues such as race, class, and gender, and its exclusive focus both on predominately male writers, poetry, and prose fiction by highlighting the diversity of cultural production in the modernist period. This book focusses specifically on women's cultural production, covering a wide range of arts and genres, including chapters on painting, theatre, and magazines. The book investigates how women usually constructed as others, themselves construct others in their work in a period prominently concerned with the construction of self as an issue. This diversity offers a new format of reading modernism in a cross-disciplinary context.

Women's Lives/Women's Times Trev Lynn Broughton, Linda R. Anderson, 1997-01-01 Women's Lives/Women's Times reflects the growing interest in life writing as a basis for both feminist theorizing and women-centered education. It discusses the many ways in which the study of autobiography can contribute to the theory, practice, and politics of women's studies, as curriculum, and to feminist theory more generally. This volume is concerned with the application of theory to text, particularly with the assumptions and discourses of postmodernism, but also in exploring how general theories of the subject do not always fit comfortably with the specifics of autobiographical writing. It also recognizes the challenge women's autobiography offers to theory, taking us in its complex weave of the personal, the political, and the theoretical beyond the usual generic and disciplinary boundaries.
