Despite a slow decrease in the incidence of peptic ulcer in the Western world during the past decade general practitioners physicians gastroenterologists and surgeons deal with patients suffering from peptic ulcer and its complications almost daily It has been estimated that some 10% of the population in the Western world becomes afflicted by peptic ulcer at least once and many of them have chronic relapsing disease This lays a heavy burden on the amount of money which is spent in general health care In recent years our understanding of peptic ulcer disease has increased tremendously but considerable gaps in our knowledge remain Originally the increase in our knowledge has been stimulated by the development of fibre optic endoscopy in the sixties and later by the development of new surgical techniques and drugs in the seventies New insights into the pathophysiology of the disease resulted from these developments and revived the scientific interest in peptic ulcer disease However the field remains complicated and the studies are bedevilled by the large number of variables which can affect the results In the symposium PEPTIC ULCER TODAY we have attempted to bring together recent knowledge on basic and clinical aspects of peptic ulcer disease      Inflammatory Bowel Diseases 1990 D. Rachmilewitz, George O. Zimmerman, 2012-12-06 The Third International Symposium on Inflammatory Bowel Diseases was held in Jerusalem during September 10-13, 1989. Four hundred physicians and scientists from 25 countries attended the meeting. The symposium was organized into five panels devoted to state of the art reviews of the latest findings and approaches on the etiology, pathogenesis, metabolic implications, clinical assessment of disease activity and the medical management of IBD. Several issues were discussed in debate form. The last panel was dedicated to discussion of three patients with computer assisted active participation of all the attendants. In addition, 03 abstracts were presented as posters, all of which were published in the Book of Abstracts. The organizing committee gratefully acknowledges the contributors who presented their work in clear and concise manner and the participants whose active part in the discussions contributed to the success of the meeting. The Jerusalem International symposium on Inflammatory Bowel Diseases has become a tradition that will continue with the Fourth Symposium to be convened in September 1993. Cell/Tissue Injury and Cytoprotection/Organoprotection in the Gastrointestinal Tract Ludmila P. Filaretova, Koji Takeuchi, 2012 Up to date reviews on the mechanisms of gastrointestinal injury and protection. In recent years there have been significant advances both in understanding the mechanisms involved in gastrointestinal mucosal injury and protection as well as in the development of successful strategies for prevention and treatment of gastrointestinal injury. Nevertheless many people worldwide still suffer from gastrointestinal damage. This book contains contributions by an international panel of researchers in the form of up to date reviews on the mechanisms of gastrointestinal injury and protection. These are complemented by papers discussing how these new findings about cell tissue injury and cytoprotection/organoprotection can be applied to the prevention and treatment of tissue damage in the gastrointestinal tract. Moreover the publication includes a special chapter on Andre Robert who has discovered the phenomenon of gastric cytoprotection. This publication will be of great interest for both basic and clinical researchers in gastroenterology and pharmacology reviewing the advances made so far and pointing towards future developments      Monthly Catalog of United States Government Publications United States. Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, Education, and Related Agencies Appropriations for 2005 United States. Congress. House. Committee on Appropriations. Subcommittee on the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, Education, and Related Agencies, 2004      The Role of Inflammation and Immune Control in Digestive Disease and Therapeutic Approaches Shuai Wang, Liu Changhui, Zhenhua Li, Wenyi Gu, 2025-05-29 Digestive system diseases including gastroenteritis irritable bowel syndrome Crohn's disease ulcerative colitis hepatitis and pancreatitis present as a common disease that affects millions of people worldwide. The pathogenesis of these diseases remains as a complex context involving multiple factors such as genetics, environment, lifestyle, microbiome, and immune system. Recently, multi-omics analysis strategies raised much concern about the proximal and distal cross-talks between immunocytes and tissue-specific cell types. Methods for the diagnosis, treatment, and prognosis of digestive diseases related to immunity such as stem cell therapies, small molecule chemical drugs, biologics, and phytochemicals have been successively developed and applied. However, the specific functions and related mechanisms of immune cells such as T cells, B cells, macrophages, and other immune cells in digestive diseases still need further exploration. Thus, investigating the potential and promising immunomodulatory targets would help us uncover the initiation and development of molecular events of immune disorders in digestive system diseases, which in turn would promote their prevention and treatment. The goal of this Research Topic is to provide a forum to advance research on the comprehensive understanding of immune regulatory mechanisms and the role of abnormal mechanisms in the occurrence and development of digestive diseases, as well as to explore innovative immune-oriented drugs or treatment interventions in the attempt to achieve a beneficial impact on the diagnosis, prevention, therapy, and prognosis of digestive diseases. Bullet points are as below:

1. The specific functions and clinical significance of immune cells, e.g., T cells, B cells, macrophages, and other immune cells, etc. in digestive diseases.
2. The mechanism of immune cells participate in inflammatory reactions and tissue damage in digestive diseases.
3. The mechanism of regulators affecting the inflammatory response of the digestive system, e.g., nuclear receptor, membrane receptor pathway, etc.
4. The role of small molecules in digestive diseases, e.g., cytokines, chemical factors, anti-inflammatory agents, immune regulatory molecules, etc.
5. Development of novel anti-inflammatory and immunomodulatory drugs for digestive diseases.

Bibliometric studies are outside of the scope of this section and may be rejected or redirected to other journals/sections as appropriate. Bioinformatics or Computational Analysis of public genome or transcriptome databases need to be accompanied by robust and relevant validation to be submitted to this section. Manuscripts describing the pharmacological action of drugs used in traditional medicine in models of disease such as inflammatory disease are not in scope unless they have a strong focus on the immune system.
