Stone Rain:

The Political Ecology of Household Water in Northern Ghana Irit Eguavoen, 2008 Household water provides the entry point for this ethnography and study of institutional change The book discusses the political economy of poverty and presents the polyphone discourse on water and the environment It outlines water history and water rights from the 1970s onwards and analyzes social dynamics It offers a critical voice in the debate on climate change by arguing that local and global perceptions are not necessarily coherent

Companions of the Day and Night Wilson Harris, 2012-11-15 He ascended eyes riveted nailed to the steps leading up to the top of the pyramid of the sun How many human hearts he wondered had been plucked from bodies there to feed the dying light of the sun and create an obsession with royal sculptures echoing stone It was time to take stock of others as hollow bodies and shelters into which one fell In Companions of the Day and Night first published in 1975 Wilson Harris revives figures from his earlier Black Marsden chiefly Clive Goodrich the editor of this text who constructs a narrative from the papers of a figure known as Idiot Nameless a wanderer between present and past taking an Easter sojourn in Mexico that lasts both for days and for centuries The results have the strangely hypnotic power characteristic of Wilson Harris's fiction

The Buried City Gabriel Zuchtriegel, 2025-05-15 The director of the Pompeii Archaeological Park offers a vivid view of daily life in the lost city shares the latest discoveries and reflects on preserving heritage In The Buried City Gabriel Zuchtriegel takes us on a behind the scenes tour of Pompeii and reveals new archaeological finds that are being unearthed at the site's biggest dig in a generation. As director of the Pompeii Archaeological Park Zuchtriegel presents a uniquely intimate perspective on this city that was tragically destroyed and frozen in time by the eruption of Mount Vesuvius in 79 CE. Among the ruins we find unmade beds, dishes left drying, and bodies of victims encased in ash, but Zuchtriegel shows that we've only begun to understand this fascinating place as a third of the site remains unexcavated. Zuchtriegel leads us into the heart of the city, reconstructing Pompeii as it would have been, showing us who lived there, what mattered to them, and what happened in their final hours. The Buried City reveals the latest discoveries unearthed at Pompeii, including a banquet hall with murals of Greek gods, a fresco of what appears to be a pizza, and the remains of individuals crushed by debris, all buried for almost two thousand years. Zuchtriegel offers a vivid portrait of this World Heritage site as a vibrant and diverse city connecting us to a past that is much closer than we think, and inviting us to reflect on our role as keepers of the site and its history. Epic Mythology E.

Washburn Hopkins, 1984-01-01 This volume strikes a new note in the study of Indian epics, the Ramayana and the Mahabharata. In it, for the first time, mythology is dissociated from the running threads of both the epic texts. The mythology of the two epics of India represents, in general, the belief of the people of Northern India along the lower Ganges within a few centuries of the Christian era. For the Mahabharata, the time is from 300 B.C. to 400 A.D. The Mahabharata as a whole is later than the Ramayana, which is metrically more advanced and the work of one author. The rougher epic form of the Mahabharata represents a life less rude than depicted in the Ramayana, and work of many hands and of different times. Epic mythology is, however, fairly consistent. There is no great discrepancy between the character of any one god in the Mahabharata and that of the same god in the Ramayana. Nor is the character of gods very different in different parts of the Mahabharata, save for the sectarian tendency to invert the positions of the three highest gods in favour of the sect. Victorian Wooden and Brick Houses with Details A. J. Bicknell & Co., 2012-08-02 DIV81 illustrations depict floor plans, elevations, and other details of suburban residences, capturing the elaborate, distinctive beauty of the Victorian era: cornices, staircases, gables, verandas, doors, dormers, and more. The Probable Future Alice Hoffman, 2004-06 The women of the Sparrow family, who each possess an unusual psychic gift, must confront a haunting past and a very current murder in small-town New England.

Encyclopedia of Post-Colonial Literatures in English Eugene Benson, 2004-11-30 Documents the history and development of post-colonial literatures in English, together with English and American literature, and includes original research relating to the literatures of some 50 countries and territories. In more than 1,600 entries written by more than 600 internationally recognized scholars, it explores the effect of the colonial and post-colonial experience on literatures in English worldwide.
