

The background of the image is a soft, painterly landscape. In the foreground, a rustic stone wall made of large, flat, greyish-brown stones runs across the frame. Behind the wall, there are trees with foliage in shades of yellow, orange, and green, suggesting an autumn setting. The sky is a pale, hazy yellow, and a soft, ethereal light emanates from the upper right corner, creating a misty or dreamlike atmosphere. The overall color palette is warm and muted, with a focus on natural tones.

Stones of Remembrance Liz Dunsdon, 2017-05-26 There is a bell that hangs on the wall in the chemo room Patients get to ring this bell when all their rounds of chemo are completed They ring the bell with such glee and joy Chemo is finished and life can carry on I hate that bell I know that sounds foolish but I really really really hate that bell The doctors told me the second time my breast cancer returned that it had metastasized to my bones and lymph system and so it was incurable I will never get to ring it unless God chooses to do a miracle Instead I sit in the chemo room and stare at the bell and smile when others ring it Some days I want to take the bell and throw it out the closest window and other times it takes all I have to not go up and ring it and ring it some more I am not sure if I would be ringing it in hope or defiance Such foolishness but I hate hearing that bell ring I smile cheer and clap when someone else rings the bell but inside I hurt The bell makes me angry and I sit and ask God why Why not me Why I am sure that everyone can relate to something in their life they have wanted to do so badly but cant It may be a foolish desire but it is part of who we are short tale then a play But the story wasn't finished it never is when the house hasn't spoken all it means to say What came instead was An T ocras The Hunger A hunger older than fire than names than even the land's forgetting Inside this house time forgets how to behave You'll meet a minstrel who traded voice for eternity a woman walled behind weeping stones and children the bog still whispers about No easy heroes here Just people half broken half hoping trying not to vanish I didn't write this book so much as I followed it Sat with it through long nights heard its silence its grief And when it spoke I listened You can't force a tale like this You borrow it from the earth from the ones who came before and if you do it right you give it back with a little more light It's not a tidy story The lines blur The endings fray But if you've ever stood on wet ground and felt something stir below or heard your own name echo in a place it shouldn't you'll understand This is for the ones who remember what they shouldn't and carry it anyway So go on Step through the door But mind yourself some houses once entered don't let you leave unchanged
