Columbia Leslie T. Foster,Brian Wharf,2011-11-01 People Politics and Child Welfare in British Columbia traces the evolution of policies and programs intended to protect children in BC from neglect and abuse Analyzing this evolution reveals that child protection policy and practice has reflected the priorities of politicians and public servants in power With few exceptions efforts to establish effective programs have focused on structural arrangements staffing responsibilities and rules to regulate the practice of child welfare workers Contributors to this book conclude that these attempts have been unsuccessful thus far because they have failed to address the impact of poverty on clients The need to respect the cultural traditions and values of First Nations clients has also been ignored Effective services require recognizing and remedying poverty s impact establishing community control over services and developing a radically different approach to the day to day practice of child welfare workers People Politics and Child Welfare in British Columbia provides a crucial assessment of the state of child welfare in the province Practitioners scholars and students in social work child and youth care education and other human service professions will find this book particularly important The Routledge Companion to Literary Media

Accounts and Papers of the House of Commons Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons, 1876 From Denmark to the Cariboo Linda Peterat, 2022-11-02 A captivating account of the lives of Laura Christine and Caroline Lindhard three sisters who left their home in Stege Denmark in 1870 due to war political turmoil and limited opportunities and sought out new lives in the Cariboo region of British Columbia There are few stories of entrepreneurial business class women in nineteenth century BC They didn't keep diaries or save letters like the ruling class women often did and they were usually overlooked in newspaper reports Yet many came into British Columbia in the early years of the gold rush and helped build and sustain the developing communities This book tells the stories of three sisters Laura Christine and Caroline Lindhard who arrived in BC from Denmark in the 1870s Coming of age in Europe the Lindhard sisters had aspirations that were restricted by societal norms about what women could and should be and do This is a story of how each of the sisters made a life for themselves marrying and having children becoming single parents at an early age marrying again or not working together providing for their children and making choices that set them on different paths While their lives diverged at various points their commitments to each other and the next generation remained strong The sisters stories illustrate the importance of family and community relationships as support structures for women entrepreneurs who combine family responsibilities with earning a living While they were not heroic in the traditional patriarchal sense of the word the Lindhard sisters were powerful influential members of their families and their community and their lives reveal much about the complex social fabric of early British Columbia and the unsung contributions of women
