Donald E. Gelfand, Richard Raspa, Sherylyn H. Briller, Stephanie Myers Schim, 2005-05-02 End-of-life experiences are often viewed in terms of only one perspective such as medicine In this volume a variety of end-of-life experiences are presented and each case is analyzed from a variety of disciplinary perspectives These range across a broad array of the helping professions and disciplines such as information law and the social sciences The book provides a variety of narratives about end-of-life experiences contributed by members of the Wayne State University End-of-Life Interdisciplinary Project Each of the narratives is then analyzed from several different disciplinary perspectives These analyses illustrate how specific end-of-life narratives can be viewed from different dimensions and helps students researchers and practitioners see the important and varied meanings that end-of-life experiences have at the level of the individual the family and the community The narratives include end-of-life experiences of individuals from a number of diverse backgrounds Women's Narratives of Health Disruption and Illness Jennifer M. Hawkins, Peter M. Kellett, 2019-06-28 Through vivid and engaging narrative accounts written and collected by women Women's Narratives of Health Disruption and Illness Within and Across Their Life Stories explores how women experience the health disruptions and illnesses that span their lives. The collection examines how women's broader and ongoing life stories impact and are impacted by health disruptions and illnesses. Organized into three parts, the chapters explore Beginnings in which health disruptions and illnesses impact early life, motherhood, and where early choices create the origins of health issues that impact later life; Middles which explores health experiences in and around middle age or from the standpoint in middle age looking back and forth; and Endings which explores narratives of ageing and end of life communication. Personal, revealing, and often beautiful, the women's narratives featured in this book will invite the reader into the stories and lives of others and toward the reflection, learning, and personal transformation that comes from truly connecting with the experiences of others. This book will be helpful for scholars of communication, health, women's studies, family studies, and sociology. To Be Loved, An MS Story Robert Sterling, 2016-08-15 To Be Loved, An MS Story follows the unexpected adjustments Trebor makes to provide a stable life for his precious children. His adult daughter and young grandson, cast out and homeless, turn to Trebor for aid. Disabled with the debilitating symptoms of multiple sclerosis, his daughter becomes dependent on her father for day to day care. Though that co-dependence tests Trebor, it also gives birth to a greater bond. Trebor is determined his daughter won't live a life of sadness. He doesn't see her disease as a reason to count her out. Yet his efforts to provide her with the thrills, pleasures, and joys the rest of the world enjoys so effortlessly only send his spirit soaring as high as the sky for it to only suddenly crash as low as though into a darkened pit. As each day passes, Trebor realizes his daughter's progressive and challenging condition not only intrudes on the normal flow of desires she has in life but also his. Bound to caring for his daughter and raising his grandson, Trebor feels romantic love is no longer a possibility. To know love's warmth and to receive and share its fondness again seem out of the question. His devotion primarily belongs to his children now. Yet mysteriously, fascination enters his family's lives. A woman, her challenges similarly rooted to those of his daughter, arrives unexpectedly into Trebor's world and takes over part of his consciousness. This woman ignites in him an abundance of passion and desire. Romance is on fire. But can Trebor still be loved? Stories of Care: A Labour of Law LJB Hayes, 2017-05-10 Stories of Care: A Labour of Law is an interdisciplinary study of the interactions of law and labour that shape paid care work. Based on the experiences of homecare workers, this highly topical text unpicks doctrinal assumptions about class and gender to interrogate contemporary labour law. It demonstrates how the UK's crisis in social care is connected to the gendered inadequacy of labour law and argues for transformative change to law at work. Utterly compelling. Perhaps the best ever example in modern labour law scholarship of research-led recommendations. Keith Ewing, Professor of Public Law, King's College London. An important contribution to socio-legal research on care work and labour law. Judy Fudge, Professor of Labour Law, University of Kent. Innovative and meticulous, merits a very wide readership. Lizzie Barmes, Professor of Labour Law, Queen Mary University of London. A really important text which shows through deep analysis of care workers stories how badly undervalued their work is It offers an excellent analysis Robin Allen QC Cloisters Chambers A rare and valuable insight into the lives and views of women who work in the little known world of homecare for rates of pay and conditions that shame our society David Brindle Public Services Editor The Guardian Boundary breaking an outstanding contribution to the growing field of feminist labour law scholarship Joanne Conaghan Professor of Law University of Bristol Marriages and Families in the 21st Century Tasha R. This collection presents up to the minute qualitative research methodologies creatively developed by and within nursing The book is written by authors at the forefront of their fields It is aimed at enabling people to research critical issues for nursing practice and health care Nurses face the imperative for practice grounded in research based evidence The book demonstrates how qualitative methodologies can produce rigorous and valid research Drawing on empirical data each chapter introduces a particular contemporary approach examines the literature in its field discusses its relevance for nursing and health care and explains what claims to knowledge can be made Continuing to Care Karen Ann Conner, 2013-08-21

Continuing to Care describes the challenges of an aging America and changing family system Caregiving has always been a primary obligation of the family based on an informal intergenerational contract that specifies who owes what to whom This system of intergenerational reciprocity has been a central feature of American family life and has formed the foundation for successful social programs such as Social Security and Medicare that support older Americans Recent changes in the American family threaten the intergenerational family contract Changing definitions of family increasing divorce and remarriage rates the establishment of blended families and dramatic changes in the age structure and intergenerational composition of the family affect the ability of this important social unit to continue to provide care to its members Change in the American family system raises some difficult personal and social questions What is the obligation of adult children to elderly frail parents Are we expected to provide care ourselves or is supervising care provided by others an acceptable alternative Do the same rules apply in the case of step parents What is a child's obligation to a long absent father Can Americans continue to juggle responsibility for their children with the demands of careers and the needs of aging parents How much longer will we do it And what will society do if we decide to stop These questions need to be addressed as we reexamine our families caregiving role Continuing to Care brings these questions into the public forum for consideration and debate
