Militant Visions Elizabeth Reich, 2016-08 Militant Visions examines how from the 1940s to the 1970s the cinematic figure of the black soldier helped change the ways American moviegoers saw black men for the first time presenting African Americans as vital and integrated members of the nation In the process Elizabeth Reich reveals how the image of the proud and powerful African American serviceman was crafted by an unexpected alliance of government propagandists civil rights activists and black filmmakers Contextualizing the figure in a genealogy of black radicalism and internationalism Reich shows the evolving images of black soldiers to be inherently transnational ones shaped by the displacements of diaspora Third World revolutionary philosophy and a legacy of black artistry and performance Offering a nuanced reading of a figure that was simultaneously conservative and radical Reich considers how the cinematic black soldier lent a human face to ongoing debates about racial integration black internationalism and American militarism Militant Visions thus not only presents a new history of how American cinema represented race but also demonstrates how film images helped to make history shaping the progress of the civil rights movement itself

Harold Arlen and His Songs Walter Frisch, 2024-07-17 Harold Arlen's songs like Over the Rainbow and Stormy Weather form a crucial part of the American soundscape of the twentieth century From their origins at the Cotton Club of Harlem the Broadway stage and Hollywood film studios they capture an extraordinary range of emotions and styles Harold Arlen and His Songs is the first book to look at Arlen's music across his long career and through his collaborations with the top lyric writers of his time including Ted Koehler Yip Harburg Johnny Mercer and Ira Gershwin The book also discusses Arlen's activities as a singer of his music as well as the performances of vocalists with a strong affinity for it like Ethel Waters Judy Garland Ella Fitzgerald and Barbra Streisand

The Substance of Truth Tolu Olorunda, 2012-01-01 Tolu Olorunda is a cultural critic whose work has regularly appeared on AlterNet Black Commentator CounterPunch Truthout and several other publications including ColorLines magazine The Nation magazine and Wiretap magazine His book The Substance of Truth takes a frank look into what has become of a society that touts grand and lofty ideals which it often fails to fulfill With essays addressing issues as broad as the education system 21st century media culture Hip Hop culture youth culture neoliberalism and moral poverty Olorunda argues the days ahead would darken in promise if rigorous action isn't soon applied to rectify the way people think how they respond to their surroundings and the decisions they take to make the world better than it stands today This struggle he insists could define whether or not a livable future would exist for the most vulnerable of all children whose plights are increasingly cast aside and ignored From the book At risk of appearing alarmist it's easy to ignore all the warning signs hanging around us that suggest the clock is ticking fast real fast and that time left for due action is short But if life for the next generation should contain some semblance of sanity where life itself means more than shopping malls and commodities where Power stands accountable to the demands of communities all fear of coming across hyperbolic would have to give way to the realities staring us down The risk also extends to coming across Pollyannaish as though all the impurities and iniquities holding hostage society can be cured with essays or lectures But we cannot afford to let this moment slip by unattended unengaged The problems number endless and so do the possibilities And at no other moment has a generation been more fortunate with the ease of technology to make miracles happen amidst frightening circumstances At no other moment has the clarion call blared this clearly and loudly Minutes of Evidence... Great Britain.
