A Phrase Book Elizabeth Van Sant, 1914

Emily Dickinson Elizabeth Phillips, 1988-01-01 Giving us a new sense of Dickinson it considers instead evidence of the poet Dickinson bore a heavy share of domestic duties and familial responsibilities throughout most of her life The crisis she experienced during the early 1860s in a cluster of responses to the Civil War coincided with the onset of her difficulties with her eyes. Suffering from exotropia and photophobia she never fully recovered and gradually withdrew into the less severe light of the house in Amherst. She continued to care for those close to her and to write both letters and verse. From the perspective of Dickinson's maturity and resilience we also see her gift for depicting and dramatizing episodes in a manner that gives the illusion of their being autobiographical whether they are or not. Dickinson was however an actress who changed roles and points of view as readily as she experimented with poetic genres. Analyses of her various personae or supposed persons for dramatic monologues in the Browning tradition which enabled the poet to represent a range of experiences different from her own serve to dispel much of the confusion that has surrounded her in the last century. Rather than searching for an illusive absent center Phillips scrutinizes in a most revealing way the poet's reading appropriation and command of materials from the Brontës, George Eliot, Hawthorne, the Brownings, Shakespeare and the Southey for personae that introduce us to a Dickinson heretofore hardly glimpsed. A central vision of the study is the poet as a biographer of souls.

The Nation's Health Charles-Edward Amory Winslow, Frank Leslie Rector, 1919

Frontier's End Robert Gish, 1988-01-01 The western frontier was officially pronounced closed in 1890 the year Harvey Fergusson was born in Albuquerque. He spent his life reopening it in a series of novels stretching from the classic Wolf Song to the belatedly acclaimed Grant of Kingdom and The Conquest of Don Pedro. In this first full biography and critical study Robert F Gish sees Fergusson as a modern frontiersman in love with the outdoors, women and writing. The scion of New Mexico family prominent in business and politics Fergusson moved restlessly from one new frontier to another always seeking to recreate in his life and work the adventure and freedom enjoyed by his ancestors. After a strenuous open air life by the Rio Grande he went east to raise a ruckus as a journalist and then to Hollywood as a screenwriter all the while testing his sexual mettle. Finally freelance writing was the only frontier available to one of his imaginative energy. Fergusson's early novel Wolf Song is still considered one of the best ever written about the mountain man. Gish shows the writer embracing the gloriously masculine and atavistic role of a lone rider even as he scorned the worship of the primitive. Fergusson struck up a friendship with H L Mencken and Theodore Dreiser who influenced his literary style and played a part in the development of Taos and Santa Fe as meccas for artists and writers. Based on extensive research including Fergusson's diaries and correspondence Frontier's End goes a long way toward reconciling the regional with the mainstream in American literature in the person of a serious novelist whose importance is finally being recognized.
