The Information Age and Diplomacy Amir Dhia, 2006-11 Advances in the field of information and communication technologies have substantially affected most segments of our life leading to the Information Age or Information Revolution. On both individual and state scale information has become a vital commodity by which one measures levels of knowledge, skills, well-being, prosperity and development. This academic work traces the evolution of the Information Age and the emerging trends of diplomacy and politics in today's world. It signals potential opportunities and threats while strategically forecasting current and future implications. Including three major chapters, the work is divided into eleven significant themes. It reviews the emergence of knowledge-based societies and highlights their main features. The course of globalization, the worldwide Internet development, the consequences of restricting the flow of information and the Revolution in Military Affairs are among the issues examined. Also thoroughly treated is the evolution of diplomacy with reference to information and intelligence gathering, analysis and policy making. The publication outlines the qualifications of diplomats and executives required at the present and coming stages of professionalism. In addition to examining contemporary traditional and non-traditional conflicts around the globe, it takes a look at U.S. hegemony policies in world affairs. Certain cultural and social issues directly linked to the Information Age are dealt with as well. They refer to the growing importance of culture and identity awareness in an era of increasing social interdependence and to the global evolution of languages and their use in everyday life and in current affairs. The book concludes with a set of observations in the aftermath of the September 11 attacks on the United States. The observations point to particular notions and developments that influence our way of living, politics and diplomacy. Furthermore, specific analysis is made to the U.S. invasion in Iraq in March 2003 and to its consequences.

In this new work on global security thinking, 91 authors from five continents and many disciplines from science and practice assess the worldwide reassessment of the meaning of security triggered by the end of the Cold War and globalization as well as the multifarious impacts of global environmental change in the early 21st century.

The Modern Defense Industry Richard A. Bitzinger, 2009-10-15. Whether it's guns and ammunition or multidimensional anti-terrorism systems, the defense industry is dynamic, complex and ubiquitous. It is also mysterious, powerful and controversial, involving thousands of players worldwide from suppliers and producers to government and military procurers to shadowy figures that trade in the black market. This comprehensive two-volume reference will explore on a global scale the various issues, concepts, problems and controversies surrounding the rise of the modern defense industry. Unparalleled in its scope and insight, The Modern Defense Industry will prove invaluable to the industry's critics and champions alike. The phenomenon of a more or less permanent defense industry, especially one so wide in scale, breadth, air, sea, land and space technology and geography, is still relatively new. Until now, its implications for politics, economics and technology have not been adequately discussed in an authoritative, accessible format.

Mathematical Modelling for Sustainable Development Marion Hersch,2006-01-02 Many people are convinced that Sustainable Development and Mathematics are completely unrelated

Sustainable Development in its role of a value laden imperative for polluting and over consuming societies seems to be totally unconnected to mathematical reasoning and ignorant of the values behind its symbols Still they are not only connected they need each other Mathematics needs Sustainable Development When science was gradually reinvented in European medieval societies it was legitimised as contributing to the disclosure of God s divine creation The conflicts that emerged became well known as a result of the clash between Galileo and the Church Science found a new legitimacy through recognition that it was a powerful force against superstition In the Enlightenment the argument was pushed forward by attributing Progress to the advancement of science science could produce a better world by promoting rationality In our modern society science has become intimately linked to technology Science for its own sake unfortunately rarely has positive outcomes in terms of research grant applications Meanwhile science and technology and the progress they are supposed to produce meet with wide scale scepticism We all know of the current global problems climate change resource depletion a thinning ozone layer space debris declining biodiversity malnutrition dying ecosystems global inequity and the risk of unprecedented nuclear wars Science has to engage with these problems or lose its legitimacy
