television era and into the expanding digital present Over the course of 37 chapters it provides evidence of the sound media's flexibility and adaptation across diverse cultures by examining radio's past and present uses in regions including the United States Canada Britain Australia Poland China Korea Kenya Angola and Mozambique South Asia and the Caribbean Contributors include historians and media scholars as well as sound artists and radio podcast producers Notably companion links to digital quotations from works analyzed are included in many chapters along with chapter audiographies offering links to further listening Throughout The Oxford Handbook of Radio and Podcasting connects radio's broadcast past to its digital present and traces themes of creativity identity community nation and transnationality across more than a century of audio media

Making Feminist Media Elizabeth Groeneveld, 2016-08-30 Making Feminist Media provides new ways of thinking about the vibrant media and craft cultures generated by Riot Grrrl and feminism's third wave It focuses on a cluster of feminist publications including BUST Bitch HUES Venus Zine and Rockrgrl that began as zines in the 1990s By tracking their successes and failures this book provides insight into the politics of feminism's recent past Making Feminist Media brings together interviews with magazine editors research from zine archives and analysis of the advertising articles editorials and letters to the editor found in third wave feminist magazines It situates these publications within the long history of feminist publishing in the United States and Canada and argues that third wave feminist magazines share important continuities and breaks with their historical forerunners These publishing lineages challenge the still dominant and hotly contested wave metaphor categorization of feminist culture The stories struggles and strategies of these magazines not only represent contemporary feminism they create and shape feminist cultures The publications provide a feminist counter public sphere in which the competing interests of editors writers readers and advertisers can interact Making Feminist Media argues that reading feminist magazines is far more than the consumption of information or entertainment it is a profoundly intimate and political activity that shapes how readers understand themselves and each other as feminist thinkers

Domestic Cultures Joanne Hollows, 2008-02-16 Although home is central to most people's experience of everyday life the meaning of home is often taken for granted In this accessible and student friendly introduction to domestic cultures Joanne Hollows surveys current thinking and approaches to demonstrate why home is so central to our lives Domestic Cultures examines which meanings and values have been associated with home and demonstrates how these have been transformed and reworked in different historical contexts The book shows that while certain meanings of domestic culture are frequently produced for us these can be negotiated and resisted through everyday home making practices She demonstrates how elements of domesticity have been dislocated and mobilized within public life This wide ranging text challenges a range of ideas about domestic culture It examines how the meanings of domestic life are produced across a range of discourses and practices from architecture lifestyle media and advertising to home decoration cooking and watching television The book demonstrates how domestic cultures are not only linked to particular ideas about gendered identities but how they are also differentiated by class race and sexuality Domestic Cultures is a key introductory text for media sociology and cultural studies students
