

The Copenhagen gasworks built 1861-1873 designed Ferdinand Meldorff

Town planning along Continental lines

The volume of new building construction work continued during the 1860's - notably since burning buildings on the "Old Town" - was and still is encompassed in the history of the City. There were several reasons behind this expansion. The most important of these was the growth of industrialisation which was accompanied by a rapidly increasing influx of people into the City. During this decade the population increased from 48,000 to 62,000, the largest increase in Copenhagen's history.

Room for growth

Because already the new town plan for the "Malmind" were approved, Lindbøgen's model of backward system had provided the central part of the City with room to grow in. Everything was now ready for the rapid transformation which, in particular, was to characterise the old Langelandskvarter area - from 1865 onwards called Christianshavn - where the first new tenement blocks were laid out. Along these, and in the inner part of the area and in districts such as north Nørre and Nørrebro, a great number of small family housing buildings were built during these few years. The new Building By-Law's and Building Ordinance's strictly regulated every width and length of buildings around a central urban street measurements with a form of planned architecture in a rich neo-Renaissance style. The City authorities experienced that the approved plan was adapted when the actual construction work was in the hands of individual building contractors. The work was frequently of a purely speculative nature in order to achieve quick profits.

Peaceful Path Stephen Ward, 2016-03-14 The title of this book is taken from Ebenezer Howard's visionary tract To morrow A Peaceful Path to Real Reform Published in 1898 as a manifesto for social reform via the creation of Garden Cities it proposed a new way of providing cheap and healthy homes workplaces and green spaces in balance in cohesive new communities underpinned by radical ideas about collective land ownership While Howard's vision had international impact in this book planning historian Stephen Ward largely honors the special place that Hertfordshire occupies on the peaceful path beginning with the development of Letchworth and Welwyn Garden Cities

Sprawling Places David Kolb, 2010-01-25 People often bemoan the spread of malls suburban strips subdivisions and other sprawling places in contemporary America But are these places as bad as critics claim In Sprawling Places David Kolb questions widely held assumptions about our built environments Kolb agrees there is a lot not to like about many contemporary places but to write them off simply as commodified nonplaces does not treat them critically Too often Kolb says aesthetic character and urban authenticity are the focus of critics when it is more important to understand a place's complexity and connectedness Kolb acknowledges that the places around us increasingly have banal exteriors yet they can be complex and can encourage their inhabitants to use them in multiple nonlinear ways Ultimately Kolb believes human activity within a place is what defines it Even our most idealized classical places he shows change over the course of history when subjected to new linkages and different flows of activity Engaging with the work of such writers and critics as Henri Lefebvre Manuel Castells Karsten Harries and Christian Norberg Schulz Kolb seeks to move discussions about sprawl away from the idea that we must choose between being rooted in the local Black Forest soil or wandering in directionless space By increasing our awareness of complexity and other issues Kolb hopes to broaden and deepen people's thinking about the contemporary built environment and to encourage better designs in the future
