Stones, Bones, and the Sacred Alan H. Cadwallader, 2016-12-16

A crucial text for any university course on the interaction of archaeology and the Bible The world of early Christians was not a world lived in texts it was a world saturated with material reality and concerns what where and when to eat or drink how to present oneself in the space of bodily life and that of death how to move from one place to another what impacted status or the adjudication of legal charges All these and more controlled so much of life in the ancient world The Christians were not immune from the impact of these realities Sometimes they absorbed their surrounds sometimes they quite explicitly rejected the material practices bearing in on them frequently they modified the practice and the rationale to create a significant Christian alternative The collection of essays in this volume come from a range of international scholars who for all their different interests and critical commitments are yet

united in treasuring research into the Greek and Roman worlds in which Christians sought to make their way They offer these essays in honor of one who has made a lifetime s work in mining ancient material culture to extract nuggets of insight into early Christian dining practices Dennis E Smith Features Rich examples of method in the utilization of ancient material culture for biblical interpretation Thirteen essays with a response from Dennis E Smith Maps diagrams and plates

The First Fossil Hunters Adrienne Mayor,2000 The fascinating story of how the fossils of dinosaurs mammoths and other extinct animals influenced some of the most spectacular creatures of classical mythology Griffins Centaurs Cyclopes and Giants these fabulous creatures of classical mythology continue to live in the modern imagination through the vivid accounts that have come down to us from the ancient Greeks and Romans But what if these beings were more than merely fictions What if monstrous creatures once roamed the earth in the very places where their legends first arose This is the arresting and original thesis that Adrienne Mayor explores in The First Fossil Hunters Through careful research and meticulous documentation she convincingly shows that many of the giants and monsters of myth did have a basis in fact in the enormous bones of long extinct species that were once abundant in the lands of the Greeks and Romans As Mayor shows the Greeks and Romans were well aware that a different breed of creatures once inhabited their lands They frequently encountered the fossilized bones of these primeval beings and they developed sophisticated concepts to explain the fossil evidence concepts that were expressed in mythological stories The legend of the gold guarding griffin for example sprang from tales first told by Scythian gold miners who passing through the Gobi Desert at the foot of the Altai Mountains encountered the skeletons of Protoceratops and other dinosaurs that littered the ground Like their modern counterparts the ancient fossil hunters collected and measured impressive petrified remains and displayed them in temples and museums they attempted to reconstruct the appearance of these prehistoric creatures and to explain their extinction Long thought to be fantasy the remarkably detailed and perceptive Greek and Roman accounts of giant bone finds were actually based on solid paleontological facts By reading these neglected narratives for the first time in the light of modern scientific discoveries Adrienne Mayor illuminates a lost world of ancient paleontology As Peter Dodson writes in his Foreword Paleontologists classicists and historians as well as natural history buffs will read this book with the greatest of delight surprises abound

Life and death of a rural village in Garamantian Times. Archaeological investigations in the oasis of Fewet (Libyan Sahara) Lucia Mori, 2013-12-01 This volume presents the results of the archaeological investigations in the oasis of Fewet SW Libyan Sahara carried out by the Archaeological Mission in the Sahara of the Sapienza University of Rome. Evidences of an ancient rural village were identified under the houses of the modern town of Tan Afella and a large necropolis dated to the Garamantian times spread at the fringes of the modern settlement. Until 1997 very little was known on the Garamantian period in the Wadi Tanezzuft area and on the transition from the pastoral to the early historical phase. This period witnessed the gradual sedentarisation of human groups in the oases and the development of caravan routes with the flourishing of an intra and trans Saharan trade. These processes also influenced by significant alterations in climate which led to the agricultural exploitation of the limited areas where water resources were available the oases were archaeologically unknown as far as settlements were concerned. The archaeological surveys and excavations carried out in the area of Fewet were particularly promising and are here analysed in a multidisciplinary perspective which takes into consideration environmental and anthropological studies in the attempt to reconstruct the culture and the life of people inhabiting the Southern Fezzan region in early historical times. The historical archaeology of the Sahara remains an underdeveloped field of research especially for the pre Islamic period. The most significant exception to this rule has for long concerned the people known as the Garamantes who inhabited the central Saharan region coincident with Libya's south west province Fezzan. This volume is a marvelous addition to the small corpus of published research on the Pre Islamic oasis societies of the Sahara and provides a complementary perspective on the world of the Garamantes to the Anglo Libyan work I have directed from their heartlands in the Wadi el Ajal c 400 km to north east of Ghat. The Essential Max Müller J. Stone, 2016-04-30 Max Müller is often referred to as the father of Religious Studies having himself coined the term science of religion or religionswissenschaft in 1873. It was he who encouraged the comparative study of myth and ritual and it was he who introduced the oft quoted dictum 'He who knows one religion knows none'. Though a German born and German educated philologist he spent the greater part of his career at Oxford becoming one of the most famous of the Victorian arm chair scholars. Müller wrote extensively on Indian philosophy and Vedic religion, translated major sections of the Vedas, the Upanisads and all of the Dhammapadam, yet never visited India. To be sure his work bears the stamp of late Nineteenth Century sensibilities but as artifacts of Victorian era scholarship Müller's essays are helpful in reconstructing and comprehending the intellectual concerns of this highly enlightened though highly imperialistic age.

Monastiraki Katalimata Krzysztof Nowicki, 2008-12-31 At first sight the cliffside site of Katalimata looks like an extreme refuge place where one might expect small groups of people hiding for a brief time during the most serious period of threat Excavation of the largest of the terraces however has shown that use of the place was often long lasting and more complex The most interesting result of the project was the identification at Katalimata of almost all the same phases known from elsewhere in Crete as periods of disturbances relocations and destructions This monograph provides a detailed discussion of the six occupational phases recorded on the largest of Monastiraki Katalimata's terraces and offers a reconstruction of the site's role in the context of Cretan history

Interpreting Landscapes Christopher Tilley, 2016-06-03 This book takes a new approach to writing about the past Instead of studying the prehistory of Britain from Mesolithic to Iron Age times in terms of periods or artifact classifications Tilley examines it through the lens of their geology and landscapes asserting the fundamental significance of the bones of the land in the process of human occupation over the long duration Granite uplands rolling chalk downlands sandstone moorlands and pebbled hilltops each create their own potentialities and symbolic resources for human settlement and require forms of social engagement Taking his findings from years of phenomenological
