Stoning Mary:

Stoning Mary Debbie Tucker Green, 2005 Debbie Tucker Green's Stoning Mary is a play that explores everyday reality in an unstable war-torn country and asks what it would be like if these things were happening here. A Narratology of Drama Christine Schwanecke, 2022-01-19 This volume argues against Gérard Genette's theory that there is an insurmountable opposition between drama and narrative and shows that the two forms of storytelling have been productively intertwined throughout literary history. Building on the idea that plays often incorporate elements from other genres especially narrative ones the present study theorises drama as a fundamentally narrative genre. Guided by the question of how drama tells stories the first part of the study delineates the general characteristics of dramatic narration and zooms in on the use of narrative forms in drama. The second part proposes a history of dramatic storytelling from the Renaissance to the twenty-first century that transcends conventional genre boundaries. Close readings of exemplary British plays provide an overview of the dominant narrative modes in each period and point to their impact in the broader cultural and historical context of the plays. Finally the volume argues that throughout history highly narrative plays have had a performative power that reached well beyond the stage. Dramatic storytelling not only reflects socio-political realities but also largely shapes them.
