In The Beginning God Created a Hologram Frederick Guttman, Unlike animals we can consider that human beings attach great importance to our personal reality Certainly other forms of life that we know of on this planet do not have a sufficient level of consciousness to carry out this type of reasoning Thinking about who we are we cannot exclude another existential doubt where do we come from Empirical science from the 16th to the 20th centuries would tell us that simply we proceed from certain casual processes in particular environments that resulted in various changes in life forms which were changing psychically morphologically and biologically to go becoming completely different and that thousands and millions of years later would become what we can now say that we are Do you wonder what the mind has to do with the origin of the cosmos Everything I'm not going to address data that I covered half a decade ago in the initial Sakla Rebellion trilogy but I do have to remind you if you've read it that mythology plays an important role in our understanding of the perceivable universe as long as they're understood their symbols and know how to adapt to the principles of the mind As a point of reference I use the story that we have received by transmission from the Hebrew prophet Moses or Mashah if we read it literally from the Hebrew language or Moshe as the Jews call him Why Well I am Jewish by descent an Israeli citizen and I speak Hebrew so what better than to give my opinion from a more scholarly angle on this field And if you ask me why Moses Although I can take some isolated source as a skeleton to build the body of this book but what happens is that the circumstances have occurred in such a way that these writings which To the speculative and superstitious mind man and the
