Storming The Heavens The Soviet League Of The Militant Godless:

Storming the Heavens Daniel Peris, 1998 A member of the first generation of scholars allowed access to formerly closed Soviet archives Daniel Peris offers a new perspective on the Bolshevik regime's antireligious policy from 1917 until 1941. He focuses on the activities of the League of the Militant Godless, the organization founded by the regime in 1925 to spearhead its efforts to promote atheism, and he presents the League's propaganda activities and personnel at both the central and the provincial levels. On the basis of his research in archives in rural Pskov and industrial Iaroslavl as well as in the central party and state archives in Moscow, Peris emphasizes the transformation of the ideological agenda formulated in Moscow as it moved to its intended audience. Storming the Heavens places the League within the broader context of a Bolshevik political culture that often acted at cross purposes to undermine the regime's stated goals. The League's lack of success, argues Peris, reflects the bureaucratic orientation of Bolshevik political culture, particularly in how it pursued the radical social vision of 1917. His book provides a framework for understanding secularization in revolutionary contexts as well as contributing to the on-going reassessments of the Bolshevik era.

"Storming the Heavens" Daniel Peris, 1994 "Storming the Heavens" Daniel Peris, 1994 Among the many social campaigns launched by the Bolsheviks in the 1920s, the effort to counter the pervasive influence of religion was among the most visible. From 1924 to 1941, the League of the Militant Godless, the quasi-governmental organization charged with disseminating atheism, maintained a nationwide network of activists, published a wide array of propaganda materials, organized lectures, and agitated against religion. Examination of the League presents an opportunity to investigate how the Bolsheviks conceived and executed their social agenda to modernize Russia. My dissertation uses the League's local operations in the towns of Iaroslavl and Pskov to argue that the evolving Bolshevik political culture itself constrained social transformation. As an expression of this culture, the League was striking on several counts. First, it measured success more in terms of maintaining its network than by the spread of atheism. Because atheism was perceived to be flourishing only if the League prospered, this organized manifestation of widespread atheism ultimately substituted for genuine cultural change. Second, the League repeatedly failed to achieve its organizational goals. Throughout the country, local cells and councils of the Godless were founded, lapsed into desuetude, and were later recreated when the next organizational wave struck. Third, because the League's goal of an extensive network assumed the presence of large numbers of trained, competent cadres, the regime's chronic inability to meet this expectation became the defining characteristic of the League's history. Finally, these organizational pressures were reflected in League propaganda that shifted rapidly from one campaign to another. Moreover, because the League participated in every major and minor campaign of the regime, many of its ventures had little to do with religion or atheism.

Stalin's Outcasts Golfo Alexopoulos, 2018-07-05 I served not in defense of the bourgeois order but only for a crumb of bread, since I was burdened with five small children. From 1923 to 1925 I worked as a musician, but later my earnings weren't steady and I quickly stopped. Without an income to live on I was drawn to the nonlaboring path As a man almost completely illiterate and therefore not prepared for any kind of work I was forced to return to my craft as a barber I am as ignorant as a pipe Golfo Alexopoulos focuses on the lishentsy outcasts of the interwar USSR to reveal the defining features of alien and citizen identities under Stalin s rule Although portrayed as bourgeois elements lishentsy actually included a wide variety of people including prostitutes gamblers tax evaders embezzlers and ethnic minorities in particular Jews The poor the weak and the elderly were frequent targets of disenfranchisement singled out by officials looking to conserve scarce resources or satisfy their superiors with long lists of discovered enemies Alexopoulos draws heavily on an untapped resource an archive in western Siberia that contains over 100 000 individual petitions for reinstatement Her analysis of these and many other documents concerning class aliens shows how Bolshevik leaders defined the body politic and how individuals experienced the Soviet state Personal narratives with which individuals successfully appealed to officials for reinstatement allow an unusual view into the lives of outcasts From Kremlin leaders to marked aliens many participated in identifying insiders and outsiders and challenging the terms of membership in Stalin s new society Orthodox Russia: Belief and Practice Under the Tsars , Uprooting Otherness Charles E. religion and creating an atheist society A Sacred Space Is Never Empty presents the first history of Soviet atheism from the 1917 revolution to the dissolution of the Soviet Union in 1991 Drawing on a wealth of archival material and in depth interviews with those who were on the front lines of Communist ideological campaigns Victoria Smolkin argues that to understand the Soviet experiment we must make sense of Soviet atheism Smolkin shows how atheism was reimagined as an alternative cosmology with its own set of positive beliefs practices and spiritual commitments Through its engagements with religion the Soviet leadership realized that removing religion from the sacred spaces of Soviet life was not enough Then in the final years of the Soviet experiment Mikhail Gorbachev in a stunning and unexpected reversal abandoned atheism and reintroduced religion into Soviet public life A Sacred Space Is Never Empty explores the meaning of atheism for religious life for Communist ideology and for Soviet politics

Multiethnic Societies of Central Asia and Siberia Represented in Indigenous Oral and Written Literature Merle Schatz, 2022 Central Asia and Siberia are characterized by multiethnic societies formed by a patchwork of often small ethnic groups At the same time large parts of them have been dominated by state languages especially Russian and Chinese On a local level the languages of the autochthonous people often play a role parallel to the central national language The contributions of this conference proceeding follow up on topics such as What was or is collected and how can it be used under changed conditions in the research landscape how does it help local ethnic communities to understand and preserve their own culture and language Do the spatially dispersed but often networked collections support research on the ground What contribution do these collections make to the local languages and cultures against the backdrop of dwindling attention to endangered groups These and other questions are discussed against the background of the important role libraries and private collections play for multiethnic societies in often remote regions that are difficult to reach

The Plot to Kill God Paul Froese, 2008-08-06 Paul Froese explores the nature of religious faith in a provocative examination of the most massive atheism campaign in human history That campaign occurred after the 1917 Russian Revolution when Soviet plans for a new Marxist utopia included the total eradication of all religion Even though the Soviet Union's attempt to secularize its society was quite successful at crushing the institutional and ritual manifestations of religion its leaders were surprised at the persistence of religious belief Froese's account reveals how atheism when taken to its extreme can become as dogmatic and oppressive as any religious faith and illuminates the struggle for individual expression in the face of social repression

Red Priests Edward E. Roslof, 2002-10-24 The 1917 revolutions that gave birth to Soviet Russia had a profound impact on Russian religious life Social and political attitudes toward religion in general and toward the Russian Orthodox Church in particular remained in turmoil for nearly 30 years During that time of religious uncertainty a movement known as renovationism led by reformist Orthodox clergy pejoratively labeled red priests tried to reconcile Christianity with the goals of the Bolshevik state But Church hierarchy and Bolshevik officials alike feared clergymen who proclaimed themselves to be both Christians and socialists This innovative study based on previously untapped archival sources recounts the history of the red priests who acting out of religious conviction in a hostile environment strove to establish a church that stood for social justice and equality Red Priests sheds valuable new light on the dynamics of society politics and religion in Russia between 1905 and 1946 Rebounding Identities Dominique Arel,Blair A. Ruble,2006 An examination of post Soviet society through ethnic religious and linguistic criteria this volume turns what is typically anthropological subject matter into the basis of politics sociology and history Ten chapters cover such diverse subjects as Ukrainian language revival Tatar language revival nationalist separatism and assimilation in Russia religious pluralism in Russia and in Ukraine mobilization against Chinese immigration and even the politics of mapmaking A few of these chapters are principally historical connecting tsarist and Soviet constructions to today s systems and struggles The introduction by Dominique Arel sets out the project in terms of new scholarly approaches to identity and the conclusion by Blair A Ruble draws out political and social implications that challenge citizens and policy makers Rebounding Identities is based on a series of workshops held at the Kennan Institute in 2002 and 2003 Power and the Sacred in Revolutionary Russia Glennys Young,2010-11 After the 1917 Revolution in Russia the Bosheviks launched a massive assault on religion Although we know a great deal about how the Bolsheviks went about doing this propaganda persecution of clergy and laity seizing church property scholars have not devoted much attention to the other side of the story the people who were being persecuted and how they responded to their persecutors Glennys Young shows how ordinary Russian peasants devised ways of asserting their religious faith during the difficult period of New Economic Policy 1921-28 when the Party state was ideologically obsessed with eradicating religion Faced with persecution torture and the creation of antireligious organizations such as the League of the Godless Orthodox clergy and laity organized themselves against the Bolsheviks They revived factional politics even using the village soviets the intended cornerstone of Soviet power in the countryside to defend their religious interests When they achieved some degree of success in their resistance the Bolsheviks were forced to respond and adapt their strategies a conclusion that scholars have not put forward previously Based on extensive research in archives and published sources Young s book will force historians of Soviet Russia to confront religious issues as central to rural politics Her work also draws upon cultural anthropology and theories of peasant politics making it of great interest to any scholars studying the processes of secularization and desacralization in other cultures Empire and Belonging in the Eurasian Borderlands Krista A. Goff,Lewis H. Siegelbaum,2019-04-15 Empire and Belonging in the Eurasian Borderlands engages with the evolving historiography around the concept of belonging in the Russian and Ottoman empires The contributors to this book argue that the popular notion that empires do not care about belonging is simplistic and wrong Chapters address numerous and varied dimensions of belonging in multiethnic territories of the Ottoman Empire Imperial Russia and the Soviet Union from the mid nineteenth to the late twentieth centuries They illustrate both the mutability and the durability of imperial belonging in Eurasian borderlands Contributors to this volume pay attention to state authorities but also to the voices and experiences of teachers linguists humanitarian officials refugees deportees soldiers nomads and those left behind Through those voices the authors interrogate the mutual shaping of empire and nation noting the persistence and frequency of coercive measures that imposed belonging or denied it to specific populations deemed inconvenient or incapable of fitting in The collective conclusion that editors Krista A Goff and Lewis H Siegelbaum provide is that nations must take ownership of their behaviors irrespective of whether they emerged from disintegrating empires or enjoyed autonomy and power within them

And God Created Lenin Paul Gabel,2010-10-04 This book examines in depth the conflict between Lenin's logic driven efforts to stamp out religion and the churches passionate attempts to save themselves from obliteration It looks at both sides objectively and admits that they both presented strong cases In this thoroughly researched yet accessible study historian Paul Gabel offers a new understanding of the only effort in world history to upset the universality of religion Besides the main conflict between the Russian Orthodox Church and the atheist state Gabel also considers the tensions that this campaign against religion caused within the Communist Party In addition he discusses the bitter hatred dividing the Orthodox factions that refused cooperation with the government from those that tried to adapt the church to communism Was the failure of Soviet communism to eradicate religion simply a matter of practical miscalculation or was this effort in light of the persistence of religion throughout history ultimately unrealistic and doomed from the start This is the key question that Gabel's fascinating insightful narrative attempts to answer

Defending the Faith Todd Weir,Hugh McLeod,2021-01-11 This book explores how conflicts between secular worldviews and religions shaped the history of the 20th century

From the Khan's Oven Eren Tasar,Allen J. Frank,Jeff Eden,2021-10-11 The volume's unifying theme inspired by the scholarly legacy of Professor Devin DeWeese and indeed the subject of all the contributions is the history of religion among the Muslim peoples of Inner and Central Asia grounded in ignored or hitherto unknown indigenous sources Individually and as a whole the articles pay tribute to DeWeese's pathbreaking contributions to the disciplines of history and religious studies by exploring new approaches and new sources to build on this legacy The volume pays particular attention to DeWeese's point d'appui the centrality of Sufism in the region's religious social and literary history The volume's focus is thus twofold to bring a new set of rich largely unused materials into the scholarly domain among specialists on Central Asia and to challenge historians of Islam to recognize that understanding the religious history of Central Asia and Sufism in particular is crucial in evaluating the Islamic world as a whole Contributors Peter B Golden Jrgen Paul Ron Sela Nicholas Walmsley Jo Ann Gross Daniel Beben Jeff Eden Jamal Elias Michael Kemper Paolo Sartori Eren Tasar St phane A Dudoignon Allen J Frank
